Police Arrest Organizer of Hunger March

Communist Leader in London Is Accused of Fostering Mutiny

RECORDS ARE SEIZED
Arrest Won't Stop Demonstration in House of Commons, Claim

London.—(P)—W. A. L. Hannington, Communist organizer of the unemployed "hunger march" on London, was arrested today on a charge of inciting to mutiny among the London police, and lodged in the Bow-st. police station pending arraignment.

Twenty detectives swarmed into his office and arrested Hannington as he talked at his desk with a newspaperman.

The office records were seized and another man was arrested on a charge of distributing seditious literature.

Hannington threatened yesterday he would lead 50 of his men to the house of commons tonight and revision of the dole system, scorning the tradition that petition to the house must be signed by a member of parliament.

He was charged specifically that he had attempted to cause dissension among the London police during the demonstration at Trafalgar square Sunday afternoon.

Other leaders of the unemployed declared the demonstration scheduled for tonight would be carried out despite Hannington's arrest.

Speech Cause Arrest
The charge of inciting to mutiny was based on a speech Hannington made Sunday at the foot of Nelson's monument, attacking the emergency force of special police as "blacklegs." This force, in use for the first time since the general strike of 1926, is a body of volunteers who relieve regular men from routine duty so that they may be used on emergency assignments.

More than 70 persons were injured in a bloody melee in Hyde park last Thursday, the day the national "hunger army" of 2,000 men trekked into London from all parts of the nation.

A dozen or so were injured Sunday when thousands of unemployed gathered at Trafalgar, and made a dash for Buckingham palace, the king's residence, and government buildings in Whitehall. They responded to the shrill voice of a gray haired, dark-complexioned man who dashed toward the palace with the cry, "smash the palace windows!"

Bolivia Names Member Of Arbitration Board
Berlin.—(P)—The Associated Press learned from a trustworthy source today that General Hans Kuntz had been invited to function as Bolivia's arbitrator on an international arbitration board to act in the undeclared war in the Chaco jungles of South America.

The chairman of this board under this scheme would be a prominent citizen of the United States, and it was learned that General Kuntz had reserved passage abroad the liner Europa sailing on Nov. 11.

According to the plan, Bolivia and Paraguay each nominate one arbitrator, while the third, presumably the American, would be jointly agreed upon by both countries.

Boy Gets Life Sentence
For Shooting in Georgia
Griffin, Ga.—(P)—An 18-year-old boy was sentenced to prison for life today for killing another in a quarrel that started with one calling the other a "sissy."

The prosecutor and attorneys for Edwin Bates agreed to the sentence after he pleaded guilty to a charge of murdering Troy Hand, 17. The boys quarreled last January and Hand was shot in the spine. He lay in a hospital until his death, Oct. 6.

Josef A. M. C. Avenol, above, has been named secretary-general of the League of Nations to succeed Sir Eric Drummond of Great Britain. Avenol, representative of France at Geneva since 1923, is an authority on international finance. The league assembly will reconvene on Nov. 14.

Refuses to Act On Vote Charges In Manitowoc-co

District Attorney Thinks
Inquiry Would Result
In Useless Expense

Manitowoc.—(P)—District Attorney Lyman F. Fischer has refused to sign a petition recommending a John Doe inquiry into alleged violation of the corrupt practices act by Earle P. Tower and the Aluminum Goods Manufacturing company of which Tower is an employee.

The petition presented to Fischer several days ago was signed by Edward Schmitz, secretary of the Manitowoc County Democratic organization.

Fischer announced yesterday he was convinced the inquiry would throw no new light on the affair and would be useless expenditure of the taxpayers' money. His decision left the petitioner the privilege of filing a complaint in court.

Tower has acknowledged authorship of a letter published in the Manitowoc Herald-Times endorsing the "Republican tariff policy, and stating that those who vote for such a policy are protecting their jobs. State Democratic leaders supporting Schmitz claimed that Tower and the Aluminum Goods company considered to influence votes of workmen against Democratic candidates.

The prosecutor said jurisdiction of such a case and the preliminary examination were exclusively with the municipal court. He expressed doubt that Circuit Judge Edward Voigt would entertain such a hearing.

However, Fischer said, if the proper magistrate directed him to make an investigation he would do so.

Slayer Sent to Waupun for Life

Rowland Risley Taken to Badger Prison for Murder of John Colvin

Richland Center.—(P)—A life sentence in the state prison was meted out to Rowland Risley here yesterday for the murder of John Colvin, 45.

Risley was taken to Waupun today by Sheriff Herman Kidd. He previously served a term in prison for forgery.

Circuit Judge E. S. Smalley sentenced Risley on his plea of guilty to charges of first degree murder. In addition he was given a 3 1/2 year sentence for robbery.

Colvin's body was found near here Oct. 4. He had been shot to death after a struggle on a highway with his assailant who robbed him of a large sum of money. Near the body, which was found in a wooded ravine, was Colvin's empty, blood-stained wallet.

After the slaying, Risley rented a room at a hotel at Sextonville, where his blood-stained shirt and overalls and a rifle and suitcase were found hidden. Risley fled to Waterloo, N. Y., where he was arrested. Sheriff Kidd returned him to Wisconsin after securing extradition papers from Governor LaFollette.

Deportation From Rio de Janeiro Among Great- est in History

ing to Cedar Lake

Rio de Janeiro.—(P)—As the penalty for leading the ill-fated three months revolution, 78 men, including politicians, generals, editors and political leaders, were being sent into exile today in a sweeping deportation move probably unparalleled in South American history.

Police today made public the names of the revolutionary leaders and revealed that they left their native shores Sunday night, many of them probably never to return.

The exiles were taken quietly aboard the vessel which was manned by 120 marines and 50 soldiers. They will be transferred at another Brazilian port to another ship to continue their journey to Europe.

By deporting these leaders the government has avoided long investigations and trials which were planned, and at the same time greatly weakened the opposition party for the campaign preceding the assembly election next May.

General Betholdo Klingner, whose appeal for peace a month ago hastened the collapse of the Sao Paulo revolt, General Isidor Dias Lopes, 70-year-old veteran of two revolutions, Oswaldo Chateaubriand, the journalist, Julio Mesquita Filho, director of the newspaper Estado Sao Paulo, and Guilherme Almeida, the poet, were aboard the vessel.

Arthur Bernardes, former president of Brazil, Borges de Medeiros, Rio Grande do Sul rebel leader, and Pedro de Toledo, former Sao Paulo government head, were to be deported later. They are held prisoners at the island summer palace here, which Bernardes built when he was president.

Kohler Factory Boosts Schedule

All Employees to Work
Extra Day During Winter Months

Kohler.—(P)—Working schedules of all employees in the factory of the Kohler company today were increased one day a week. It was announced by Herbert V. Kohler, executive vice president.

The increased schedule will prevail through the winter and is in accordance with a suggestion at an industrial rehabilitation conference at Milwaukee recently that industries give more work during winter months.

"It has been the policy of the Kohler organization not to lay off workmen in a depression, although this policy has necessitated a heavy loss," Kohler said.

All this year, for example, the volume of residential building, on which the company depends mainly for its market for plumbing equipment, has been only 11 per cent of what it was four years ago. However, since November, 1929, figures show, the average working hours per man in Kohler plants has been 74 per cent of the average working schedule per man in normal times.

Seek to Trace Source Of Extortion Letters

Los Angeles.—(P)—Investigation of two extortion letters received by Mrs. Violet Buchanan and demanding $12,500 under threats of harming her foster daughter, Nancy Ruth, who last week was taken from the Buchanan home by her real mother, has been started by the district attorney's office.

The real mother, Ruth Borman, former Mason City, Iowa, resident, is being held in jail on suspicion of kidnapping her own child.

"We believe there is some connection between the extortion letters and the taking of the child," said Deputy District Attorney Harry Hunt, who previously had announced he could find no connection between the letters and Miss Borman.

TURKISH BANK ROBBED
Istanbul.—(P)—The first holdup of a bank by bandits in modern Turkey was reported today when two masked men armed with revolvers, held the staff of the Ottoman bank at Bursa and escaped with $2,000.

Five Robbers Seize $15,000 At West Bend

One Bank Bandit Believed

ing to Cedar Lake

West Bend, Wis.—(P)—Five robbers this morning held up the First National Bank of West Bend, seized $15,000 which had been received from Milwaukee an hour and a half before and fled in a large black sedan.

A barber at work near the bank dropped his razor and with a rifle fired three times at the vanishing automobile. One of the robbers is believed to have been wounded.

Seven officers and employees were in the bank when the robbers entered at 9:10 a. m. One man remained at the wheel of the car. Another, apparently the leader, remained at the door where he could watch both street and lobby.

The others pushed in back of the cages. One jabbed H. E. Schacht, cashier, with a pistol, and made him lie down. The robbers then rounded up Louis Kuehlthau, acting president; G. E. Schmidt, assistant cashier; G. A. Collins, manager of the trust department; Mrs. Alice Mitter, bookkeeper; Virginia Bothwell and Marion Knippel, stenographers; Mrs. George Schwablander, a currier; and Walter Gumm, cashier of the West Bend State bank who walked in while the robbery was in progress.

Enter Vault
Two men grabbed money in the cages. Kuehlthau then was ordered to arise and accompany one man to the vault. In the vault this man took all cash on hand.

The gang ran to the automobile and Kuehlthau immediately set off a burglar alarm.

Carl O. Guth, a barber and a special policeman, stopped shaving a customer in his shop nearby. He darted to the door with a rifle and fired from the curb. One of the men in the front seat slumped to one side, Guth reported, and this impression was verified by others on the street.

The robbers' car careened around a corner into Highway 33 and a short distance from the corner stopped. Albert Beck, a farmer, reported that one man transferred from the rear to the front seat, took the wheel and started off.

An hour later the automobile was found on a side road near Cedar Lake.

Authorities expressed belief the robbers had information that the bank was to receive about $20,000 from Milwaukee.

FIND ROBBER'S CAR

Toledo, Ohio.—(P)—The automobile in which eight robbers fled yesterday afternoon with $35,000 after raiding the First National Bank of Monroe, Mich., was found today near Sylvania, Ohio. In the car were found Illinois license plates, and cancelled checks taken from the bank. Six bullet holes were in the body.

Discovery of Indian Relics Starts Talk Of Treasure Hunt

Greensburg, Ky.—(P)—Talk of a treasure hunt stirred this town today following the discovery of a petrifaction human arm, Indian relics and 12 nuggets which apparently are gold, in an obscure cavern, 18 miles southwest of here.

Three Greensburg men, L. G. Stapf, undertaker, Dr. C. P. Norton, and Edward Wellman, who entered the cave, planned to act today to secure mineral rights on surrounding land.

Two boys, John and Troy Holbrook, led the men to the cavern, which was reached by an entrance so small that he party had to crawl through on their hands and knees.

Inside, they found a room about 15 feet high, 12 feet wide and 14 feet long, with openings to other underground chambers. A more detailed examination of the cavern will be made later, the men said.

Expect Further Delay In Martin Insult Case

Toronto.—(P)—Delay of at least two weeks in extradition proceedings against Martin J. Insull seemed assured today when counsel for Cook-co, Illinois, said he would introduce no objection to a postponement sought by Mr. Insull's attorney.

Mr. Insull is under indictment in Chicago in connection with the collapse of the Public Utilities interests which he controlled with his brother, Samuel Insull. A hearing is scheduled for Friday.

Hoover Planning Westward Campaign Trip; Roosevelt Stresses Aid for Jobless

New York Governor Deplores "Personalities" in Race

OUTLINES PROGRAM
Federal Government
Must Help Provide Aid, He Says

With Governor Roosevelt, Boston.—(P)—Governor Roosevelt, in the last major speech of his presidential campaign, told a Boston audience that President Hoover "abandoned argument for personalities."

A few minutes after Mr. Hoover finished speaking last night in New York city, the Democratic presidential candidate, said "at first, the president refused to recognize that he was in a contest, but as the people have responded to our program with enthusiasm he recognized that we were both candidates."

"And then," Mr. Roosevelt added, "dignity died. At Detroit he spoke of my arguments as 'misquotings' and 'misstatements' and 'misrepresentations.' He abandoned arguments for personalities."

The nominee declared "I shall not yield to the temptation to which the president yielded. On the contrary I reiterate my respect for his person and his office."

Roosevelt asserted "the Democratic party will not merely wither with the present decline, but we seek to build up and improve, to put industry into a position where wheels will turn, and where opportunity will be given to re-employ the millions of workers who were laid off."

Job Relief Plan
In stating his program for unemployment relief, the governor said, "it was the duty of the federal government to step into the breach when the states, localities and private charity failed to provide adequately."

"The first principle is that this nation owes a positive duty that no one shall be permitted to starve," he said.

Secondly, he said, the federal government should provide temporary work whenever possible in the national forests, on flood prevention work and in the development of water projects already authorized, which could give at least temporary employment to thousands.

Thirdly, said the candidate, the federal government should expedite the actual construction of public works already authorized.

"In addition there has been long overdue a reduction of the hours of work and the number of working days per week," he continued. "The great justifications of modern industry are the cheapening of production and the lessening of the toil of man."

"These fruits will be dead fruits unless men earn enough so that they can buy the things that are produced and have the leisure for the cultivation of the body, mind and spirit which the great inventions are supposed to make possible."

Roosevelt told his audience that the administration "cracks the whip of fear over the backs of the American voters."

"Spreading Fear"
"Another means of spreading fear is through certain republican industrial leaders," he went on.

Bankruptcy Quiz Plea Denied by U. S. Judge

Chicago.—(P)—Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley today refused a motion for a bankruptcy examination intended by the petitioner to discover the assets of the Middle West Utilities company.

Judge Lindley repeated previous statements that he held hopes the two billion dollar Insull utility holding company could be reorganized and managed under equity receivership to the benefit of creditors and corporation.

Attorney William W. Wilson, in behalf of a bondholder, said he did not ask an adjudication in bankruptcy at this time.

"However," he said, "the bankrupt's attorneys have been negligent or dilatory in the case and we want to press the matter now for the purpose of discovery of assets."

Fall Festival Opens Thursday for 3 Days

One more day of bustling preparation by Appleton merchants and thrifty shoppers will swing into three days of the most outstanding merchandising event ever held in the Fox river valley. Thursday, Friday and Saturday are the days.

Armed with a coupon clipped from yesterday's or today's Appleton Post-Crescent, women will be wise to start early for the downtown district Thursday morning to join the throngs of shoppers in all the stores from one end of the shopping district to the other.

Never before have merchants cooperated so thoroughly for a trade event of this kind, and probably never again will Appleton women have the opportunity of current low prices in this annual Fall Festival. Merchants have made plans for shopping conveniences as well as numerous special bargains throughout the stores. Out of town shoppers will find free comfort rooms at the leading hotels, open from 9 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock.

No Parking Limits
All city parking regulations have been lifted during the three days of the festival, but service with the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. has been arranged through the use of these clipped coupons from the newspapers. Each coupon is good for one ride to the downtown area Nov. 3, 4 and 5, between the hours of 8:30 and 10:30 in the morning and 1 to 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

In keeping with the spirit of the three-day celebration, the Fall Festival will climax with a free pavement dance and celebration Saturday night on S. Oneida-st. in front of City hall. The music will be furnished by Al Nitz over the public address system, with the latest music being furnished for dancing by the Meyer-Seeger Music Co. This promises to be as gala an affair as the shopping events during the week, according to the committee of merchants in charge.

During the shopping days, restaurants and hotels will feature special priced menus of breakfasts, luncheons and dinners for the convenience of shoppers.

News of Festival bargains will appear for the first time in the Wednesday issue of the Appleton Post-Crescent, which will be the annual Fall Festival edition. More than 22,000 copies of this edition will reach residents throughout the Appleton area. Advertisements of innumerable bargains in every line of merchandise and news of smart styles for the new season will make this particular edition an outstanding one.

Edward Nadel, chairman of the annual Fall Festival, asks all co-operating merchants to obtain their tickets and window banners at the office of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce.

Raskob to Speak for Roosevelt Election

New York.—(P)—Democratic National headquarters announced today that John J. Raskob, former Democratic National chairman, will deliver his speech on behalf of the candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt Friday night.

The speech will deal with the economic situation.

Raskob took no part in the present campaign until recently, when he attended a luncheon with James A. Farley, present national chairman, and other Democratic leaders at which Farley announced that Raskob had given $25,000 toward the campaign.

Death Sentence Is Asked for Boyle

Birmingham, Ala.—(P)—Execution of John R. Boyle for the death of his mother was demanded by the prosecution today at the trial of the prominent attorney and leader of Birmingham society.

Opening argument for the state, Assistant Solicitor George Stuart asked the jury to find the lawyer guilty of first degree murder and sentence him to the electric chair.

He arraigned Boyle for his story that a bandit slashed his mother's throat as they picked wild flowers on Shades mountain last June 13.

Two alienists, Dr. D. W. Partlow, superintendent of Bryce State Hospital for the insane, and Dr. Wilnot S. Littlejohn, specialist in nervous diseases and mental disorders, testified yesterday in reply to hypothetical questions that considering family history and the record of the crime they would say a person committing it was insane.

Their testimony followed that of a number of relatives and associates of Boyle that he had been subject to "queer" behavior. He has pleaded not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity.

Boyle lost his composure yesterday and appeared visibly moved. The defense rested its case late in the day and arguments were set for today.

Cars Collide, Fall Into Streams; Three Drown

Fairmont, W. Va.—(P)—Speeding hovecrad in a blinding rain, two cars carrying Halloween merry-makers skidded off highways today and three persons were drowned as the machines toppled down steep embankments into swollen streams. The dead are Smith O. Tracy, 22, and Hascall Thompson, 21, both of Fairmont, and Miss Dorothy Master, 17, of Mannington, W. Va.

President Expected to Go to California For Election

HITS AT RADICALS
Declares Democrat's
Plan Would Destroy
U. S. System

Washington.—(P)—With election just one week off, President Hoover returned to the capital today to begin hurried preparation for another westward swing starting Thursday in which he will wind up his campaign for reelection, and probably continue to California to vote.

Plans for the chief executive's fifth western jaunt were taking shape today as his special train brought him in from New York where he asserted in a campaign speech last night that Democratic campaign proposals would "break down our form of government."

The president also told a gigantic Republican rally at Madison square garden that Franklin D. Roosevelt's "new deal" would "destroy the American system" of life.

After reaching Union station early today, the chief executive aroused and then took another nap before leaving his train for the White House, indicating that he was not completely rested from his strenuous day of campaigning yesterday through five states.

He and Mrs. Hoover drove through a driving rain to the White House for breakfast.

Definite arrangements have been made for Mr. Hoover to speak at Springfield, Ill., Friday afternoon and St. Louis Friday night. If he continues on to the coast, a speech may be made at Minneapolis, but his friends believed time might not allow stops at Denver and Salt Lake City.

His tentative plans call for arrival at his home in Palo Alto at noon Election day, giving him time to cast his ballot.

The president's New York speech delivered before a cheering audience that filled and overflowed every one of Madison square garden's 21,000 seats, was the big event in one of the busiest days of campaigning ever indulged in by the chief executive.

Faces Huge Crowds
Members of his official party estimated that during the day he had appeared before or spoken to more than a quarter-of-a-million people as he swung through five populous eastern states into the milling mass along New York's Fifth-ave.

During the long day the president was cheered by more people than on any of his previous campaign jaunts, but he also heard boos in Philadelphia and New York that the cheering did not quite drown out the boos.

The New York reception, with its crowded streets, showering ticker tape and confetti, intermittent applause, an army of police and waving flags was a repetition of those that he had received in rapid succession during the day at Baltimore, Philadelphia, Newark and cities in between.

It was topped off with a 13-minute ovation that filled the great spaces of Madison square garden with a deafening din that only died down when Senator Hebert (R. R. L.) began to introduce Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, widow of the former president, who in turn presented Mr. Hoover.

Before the chief executive could begin his speech, an excited man shouted down from one of the high balconies, "you're a liar." He repeated it over and over until those near him, and a half dozen police.

Hints at Secret Manipulations of Wheat for Politics

New York.—(P)—Arthur F. Mullen of Nebraska, vice chairman of the Democratic National committee, asserted today that "secret manipulations can easily put up the price of wheat, and after election, and then put it down again to a new all time low."

Mullen sent the following telegram to individuals and newspapers all over the country commenting on Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde's order of Oct. 22, modifying restrictions in the grain futures act:

"This order sets aside the provisions in the grain futures act of 1922 intended to prevent secret manipulations of the grain market. Manipulations apparently started immediately after the order as wheat dropped to a new all time low. The same secret manipulations can easily put up the price of wheat until after election and then put it down again to a new all time low. No one knows that the manipulators intend to do unless it be Mr. Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican committee who is also counsel at Washington for grain exchanges in the United States."

Horicon Dam Issue Before Service Body

Commission Considering Whether Fire Emergency Has Passed

Madison—(P)—The State Public Service commission will determine within a short time whether the fire emergency in Horicon marsh has passed and whether the dam, which was closed to raise the water level, should be opened again.

Nearly a dozen farmers and landowners on the marsh who have asked the commission to open the dam testified at a hearing yesterday that there was no actual emergency when the conservation commission was given authority on Oct. 1 to raise the water level.

Peat fires which were burning had not gone beyond the control of the landowners and those which still are burning will not spread, they said.

Some of the farmer witnesses testified that they thought the peat fires were of incendiary origin.

Commissioner A. R. McDonald, who presided at the hearing, testified that the commission is not concerned with placing blame for the fires but is interested only in determining whether an emergency still exists.

As soon as all danger has passed the dam must be reopened, he said. Commenting upon the difference of opinion between the farmers and conservation officials McDonald said it appeared that persons living in the vicinity were not much alarmed by the fires.

About 5,000 acres in the marsh were burned over. It was testified that fires still are burning north of what is known as Burnett ditch but farmers contended that they cannot spread.

While the dam closing was estimated by Conservation Director Paul Kelleter to have raised the water level two-tenths of a foot one witness said that it would require an increase of 10 feet to extinguish the fires around Burnett ditch.

$1,378,886 Paid to Maintain Asylums

For Chronic Insane

Madison—(P)—The cost of maintaining asylums for chronic insane in 36 counties during the year ending last June was $1,378,886.35 of which the state will pay $1,002,543.25, the board of control announced Monday.

The remainder of the cost is borne by the counties wherein the patients of the asylums have legal settlement. The institutions cared for 7,000 insane, of which 3,000 were committed cases to the state hospitals for the insane and mentally deficient and whose residents were cared for in other state institutions will pay the state $800,200.99 for such care during the last year, according to the board of control's certification.

Of the 7,000 insane in the two state hospitals, 1,995 mentally deficient, 256 tuberculosis patients, 633 boys and girls in the industrial schools, 503 dependent children in the state public school and nine cases in the home for women.

The total cost of caring for 1,600 patients in the 18 county tuberculosis sanatoria and one semi-private institution was $702,455.66. The state will pay $550,962.07 of this cost and the several counties $151,493.59.

Close Municipal Course for Winter

20,000 Golfers Used City Links During Summer

—Revenue $6,000

The municipal golf course was officially closed for the season yesterday, according to Ed Harwood, supervisor. The buildings were locked up and windows barred with lumber to insure them against breakage during the winter.

To further insure buildings against the inroads of vandals, a police alarm system, connected at the city police station, has been installed. This system operates from doors and windows of the buildings, and in the event that they are tampered with the alarm will be sounded.

More than 20,000 persons registered for games on the municipal course last summer, Mr. Harwood said. During that time approximately $6,000 was received in green fees. Hundreds of out-of-town golfers as well as Appleton players appeared on the course.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Morrow, above, to marry Aubrey Niel Morgan of Wales. This picture was taken shortly before the marriage of her sister, Anne, to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Elizabeth Morrow To Wed Welshman

Engagement to Youthful Public Utilities Operator Is Announced

Englewood, N. J.—(P)—Surprised society learned today Miss Elizabeth Morrow, sister of Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, is to marry Aubrey Niel Morgan, youthful public utilities operator of Wales.

The international romance, which grew from a trip Miss Morrow took with her father, the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, to the London Naval conference in 1930, was not generally known until Miss Morrow's mother announced the engagement yesterday.

Miss Morrow, eldest daughter of the late senator and financier, met Mr. Morgan in London during her 1930 sojourn there. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Llewellyn Morgan of Bryderwen, Llandaff, Wales. He was graduated from Charterhouse school and Jesus college, Cambridge, and is a member of the firm of David Morgan, Ltd., of Cardiff, Wales, which was founded by his grandfather, David Morgan.

Miss Morrow is well known as an educator. After graduation from Smith college in 1925, she studied at the Sorbonne in Paris, then went into teaching. While in Mexico her father was ambassador to that country she taught classes there and afterward she started a nursery school called the Little school in Englewood. She has since expanded the institution to include first and second grades. No date for the wedding has been announced.

New International Code Now Governs Players of Bridge

Doubled Penalties for Undertricks Greater, Culbertson Points Out

By Ely Culbertson

Effective today, more than thirty million bridge players in America and throughout the world will swing from the old laws and scoring in Contract to the new International code. To American Bridge players this event is second only to presidential elections in interest and its effect upon the American home life might easily be even more far reaching. Today many millions of frowns and puckered lips were in evidence as players started to memorize the new scoring table.

To a student of sociology the picture of millions of humans swinging around simultaneously, almost at a single moment, is highly significant—our modern mass organization. When we consider how difficult it is to train a company of soldiers to turn correctly right or left or to train a company of chorus girls to dance synchronously the magnitude of the task in teaching millions to change their habits in an intellectual game like Contract Bridge is simply appalling. And yet there is no doubt that the new International Code will be adopted almost unanimously except for the few diehards. This only proves that people will work much harder for their own pleasure than for bread.

This is the first International Code in Bridge history. For many years the traditional lawgiving body for American players was The Whist club of which Charles M. Schwab, an enthusiastic Bridge player, is the president. The Portland club of London, made the laws for England.

I suggested in the issue of the Bridge World magazine, of October, 1929, that "there is a splendid opportunity for the English and American committees to bury their differences in drafting a code of laws that would be standard for the entire English speaking world."

This suggestion met with a hearty response from the laws committees of the Whist and Portland clubs and later the Commission Française du Bridge, an organization of French players.

To aid them in representing the wishes of American Bridge players the Whist club named an American co-operating committee, of which I have the honor of being chairman. It was not easy to reach an international agreement on the code of laws of Contract Bridge.

Of necessity there was a great deal of give and take but the code, as a whole, is a splendid example of a well thought out legislation equally fair to an American, Englishman, Frenchman or a Chinese.

Many beginners in Bridge are apt to confuse the laws and rules of Contract Bridge with methods and systems of Contract Bridge. The laws and rules of Contract Bridge are the hand should be bid and played. The question of methods has never been the province of any lawgiving body. It is the business of writers, master players, Bridge teachers and millions of self-appointed theorists of this fascinating game.

The International Code consists of three broad sections:

1. Laws and rules.

2. Laws and rules.

3. Scoring table.

Ethics: The Code of Ethics has been rewritten, clarified and enlarged. The spirit of the code is expressed in the statement that the laws are not designed to prevent dishonorable practices, for which the only remedy is ostracism. There is little doubt that ethics of a mere game like Contract Bridge are far superior to those governing business.

Laws and Rules: The form of the code has been entirely changed. The first section contains a number of new definitions of terms used in Bridge, among them being the following:

Rotation: The order or succession of the game, which is from player to player to the left, in the direction taken by the hands of a watch.

Call: A comprehensive term applicable to a bid, a double, a redouble or a pass.

Denomination: The suit or no-trump named in a bid.

Bid: A call by which a player offers to contract that his side will win at least as many odd tricks (one to seven) as his bid specifies, provided the hand is played in the denomination he names.

Quitted trick: A trick which has been gathered and turned by a player on the side which has won it and from which the hand of the player has been removed.

It is pointed out that the laws are designed to define correct procedure and to provide an adequate remedy in all cases where a player accidentally, carelessly or inadvertently disturbs the proper course of the game or gains an unintentional but nevertheless unfair advantage. While in most instances the penalties are moderated to a minimum consistent with justice, there are a few cases where they appear a little bit bloodthirsty. For instance, the penalty for a pass out of turn is a new deal, as is the penalty for a player's picking up his cards while the deal is in progress.

Changes in Scoring: Scoring: Bridge players generally will be much interested in the changes relative to scoring. There has been an insistent demand for an increase in the undoubted but vulnerable penalty to simplify the scoring and to curb the wave of so-called psychic or bluff bidding. The joint committee, after all consideration, has refused to yield to this demand.

There was, however, a change made in the doubled penalties for undertricks, both vulnerable and not vulnerable. Hereafter the undertricks penalty for the first trick doubled, not vulnerable, is 100 points; for the third trick 200 points; for the fourth trick 250 points.

And the Joint Committee ought to be highly commended for presenting to the public a Code of Laws for gentlemen, made by gentlemen. (Copyright 1932, by Ely Culbertson)

Republican Women To Meet Wednesday

including all the workers who will gather at Castle hall at 7:30 Wednesday evening to make final plans for the campaign before the election next Tuesday.

A. A. L. to Observe 30th Anniversary

Appleton Officials to Talk At Celebration at Clintonville

The thirtieth anniversary of the Clintonville branch, Aid Association for Lutherans, will be observed with special festivities at the Lutheran school hall at Clintonville Thursday.

Among those from here who will take part in the program will be G. D. Ziegler, president; O. Benz, vice president; W. H. Zuehlke, treasurer; Albert Voeks, secretary; and B. E. Mayerhoff, field manager. The officers will speak and Mayerhoff will trace the history of the organization, illustrating his talk with stereoscopic slides.

The principal speaker will be the Rev. E. H. Berlerman of Wausau. J. W. Grupe, Hilbert, who received the first 500 members, also will speak. A banquet will be served at 8:30 in the evening. Miss Viola Buntrock of this city will furnish musical entertainment.

and so on, in arithmetical progression of 50 points for each added undertrick. The penalty, if the player is vulnerable, is exactly doubled in each case.

A rather complicated provision has been made in the scoring of notrump tricks below the line. The new law provides that first, second and third tricks below the line shall have the value of 30 points each, while the second, fourth and sixth shall have a value of 40 points each. I do not know how other minds work but this business of odd and even for notrumps will surely overburden my poor head. It seems to me the quickest way to get to the bottom of the matter is to toss up a coin after each notrump. According to the doctrine of chances it will prove to be equally scientific. It will be noted that three notrump will still score game, but its value is 100 and not 105 points, as heretofore. This is, of course, a concession to Howell Point scoring, being an effort to equalize the value of notrump and a minor suit game. Another change which no doubt has its origin in Duplicate scoring is that the value of an overtrick no longer remains at 50 points, but has the same value as the trick scored below the line. Thus, if you bid one diamond and make three diamonds, you now score 20 below the line and 100 above, instead of, as under the old laws, 20 below the line and 100 above. There'll be a loud wail from the chronic underbidders.

The new Scoring has many points in its favor but many players will object to it. I do not intend to argue the case, but I do intend to say that I feel sorry for the hundreds of thousands of women who, with the old Scoring, got along quite well with a count on 10 fingers but who now, with the new Scoring, may find it necessary to remove their shoes to count on their toes as well.

To what extent will this new Scoring affect the methods of bidding and play in various systems, and particularly in the Culbertson System?

Watch Slam Bids: There are not enough differences between both Scoring to warrant any radical change in the methods of bidding and play used, although a number of minor adaptations will be required. For instance, in the Culbertson System a Grand Slam bid was excluded except by a "trick" bid. Under the new Scoring the premium of 1,000 points vulnerable and 1,500 points not vulnerable could seldom justify the gamble. With the new grand slam premiums of 1,500 points not vulnerable and 2,250 points vulnerable, respectively, Grand Slam bids should be bid more often. I can confidently predict an epidemic of Grand Slam bids that will break out like a malignant rash throughout the country, and my advice is to step up the Grand Slam bidding ever so slightly, for in the long run it will prove to be a losing bid.

Under the old scoring a two trick bid to stop a part-score by opponents was punished by 200 points, which is in most cases a justifiable sacrifice. Under the new Scoring a penalty of two tricks doubled not vulnerable is 250 points, which is a bit too much. Consequently, overbidding to stop part-score should be tightened up. The new Scoring will have a considerable influence on defense bidding, especially in preemptive or shutout bids, but the overbid by 3 tricks not vulnerable to prevent opponents from scoring a game is still worth while in spite of the fact that the loss will now be 450 points instead of 400 points, as in the old Scoring.

There are several other minor adaptations in the Culbertson method of bidding which have already been made to meet the new Scoring conditions. All in all, however, no radical changes will be required.

The Code may not be perfect, but whether perfect or not, it is a step in the right direction and brings measurably nearer the goal which we have in mind, a more uniform and a more scientific and, as Chairman of the American Cooperating Committee, I am glad to see the consummation of a much desired end. The Laws of Bridge are important. The game of Bridge is the favorite pastime of the world. It will be made even more popular if we have a universal Code, applicable whether we are playing in London, in Paris, or in Shanghai.

And the Joint Committee ought to be highly commended for presenting to the public a Code of Laws for gentlemen, made by gentlemen. (Copyright 1932, by Ely Culbertson)

County Schools May Take Part in Music Festival

District Representatives to Discuss Plans for Event At Courthouse

Tentative plans and decisions regarding the state rural drama festival to be held during Farm and Home week, Jan. 30 to Feb. 3, at the Wisconsin college of agriculture at Madison, will be outlined at a meeting of the northeast drama district at the courthouse Wednesday.

Counties included in the northeast district are: Outagamie, Brown, Calumet, Door, Florence, Forest, Kewaunee, Langlade, Lincoln, Manitowish, Marathon, Marinette, Oconto, Oneida, Portage, Shawano, Vilas, Waupaca, Waushara and Winnebago.

The drama festival will take the place of final state competition which for the past five years has marked the conclusion of the rural drama year, according to George St. John, county agent. There will be five districts included in the festival.

Last year the winning plays from 21 counties were entered in the final tournament at Madison in February, during Farm and Home Week. The Badger Social Center players of Dane county were declared the champions.

Heinemann, who was chairman of the official canvassing board which made the recount, will discuss the errors the board found and will tell what the errors were. He should have done to make their returns legal. Mr. Hantschel will discuss the election forms which all boards must use and their proper use. District Attorney Stanley A. Stadl will answer questions from the attendants at the school.

Following the talk there will be an open forum discussion of the various problems which confront the vote counters.

Both Parties Near End Of Hot Campaign

Voters Go to Polls Week
From Today to Select Officials

BY H. K. DERUS
One week from today Outagamie-co voters will go to the polls to help in the selection of national and state officers and to elect county officials. Present indications are that the county will cast a vote in excess of 21,000, or about 2,000 more than were cast in the primary election in September.

It has been a bitter and an intense campaign. Politicians point out that not for two decades has there been such a battle between the Democratic and Republican parties. The Democratic party, in Outagamie-co until four years ago, was practically extinct. Not in years has such success been in electing a county officer.

But this year new life appeared. A full slate of candidates for county offices entered the field. More than 4,000 Democrats voted in the primary election—a tremendous increase over the primaries of two and four years ago. Despite the fact that Republicans regard it as an almost impossible task to be elected to a county office on the Democratic ticket, the G. O. P. candidates have been working day and night to hold up their political fences and keep their voters in line.

Many of the Republican candidates for county offices have consistently refrained from taking too prominent a part in the campaign for the national ticket—thus hoping to avoid any backfire from these voters who may vote the Democratic ticket nationally but the Republican ticket for state and county officers.

Urges Straight Ticket
One of the biggest handicaps to the election of Democratic county officers is the fact that the presidential ballots are separate from the state and county ballots. The Republicans hope, in case of a Democratic landslide nationally, that the voters will still follow the Republican banner so far as state and county officers are concerned. Democrats, on the other hand, contend that a landslide is in sight for their presidential candidate, Franklin D. Roosevelt, have been urging voters to vote the straight Democratic ticket.

As a result of this situation, the political office holders, and the officer seekers as well, are discussing more and more the possibility of a non-partisan county election. They say that this election should be held in spring, at the same time as the city elections, and that they should be entirely separated from the state and national campaigns.

This would be beneficial, they say, from several angles. One is that no longer is the county vote interested in the party affiliation of his county officers. They point out that the voters want the most capable man, regardless of the party to which he belongs, and that party politics no longer play any great part in the conduct of county government. They also say that separating the county election from the state and national election would give the voter a better opportunity to study state and national issues without mixing personal friendship for county candidates in the campaign.

Many Rallies Held
Both the Democratic and the Republican committees have held

Hunger Striker

Paul Owens' wife had him arrested for assault and battery, for which he was fined. He paid it. But when, as protection to the wife, the judge asked a $1000 peace bond Owens could not raise, he went on a hunger strike as a protest against "persecution." Here he is in jail on the 10th day of his fast.

scores of rallies in Appleton and throughout the county. The voters have been bombarded with campaign literature of every nature. They not only attended their local rallies, but they heard the "situation" discussed from every angle by every kind of speaker over the radio. They have read voluminous accounts of these same speeches. They have scanned straw votes and predictions until their heads are awash with the mass of figures, statistics, claims and counter-claims. The campaign is practically at an end except for some feverish last-minute efforts to bolster weak points.

When the voters arrive at the polls they will receive three ballots on which their choices are to be expressed. One ballot, for president, lists the names of the six candidates and their running mates for vice president. They are:

Democratic, Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner; Republican, Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis; Prohibition, William D. Upshaw and Frank S. Regan; Socialist, Norman Thomas and James H. Maurer; Independent, William Z. Foster and James W. Ford; and Independent, Verne L. Reynolds and John W. Aiken.

Four Amendments
The next ballot the voter will consider is that containing four proposed amendments to the state constitution. Two of these are in connection with the setting of the salaries of the governor and lieutenant governor, the third merely changes an error in the wording of a statute, and the third would enable municipalities to finance public utilities by mortgaging the utility or its income. The four questions follow:

Shall Section 5 of Article V of the constitution be repealed so that the salary of the governor shall be established by law?

Shall Section 9 of Article V of the constitution be repealed so that the salary of the lieutenant governor shall be established by law?

Shall Section 1 of Article VII of the constitution, relative to impeachments be amended by inserting the word "Assembly" in place of "House of Representatives" so as to correct a verbal error without making any change in procedure?

Shall Section 3 of Article XI of the constitution be amended to allow municipalities to finance public utilities by mortgaging the utility or its income instead of incurring a general indebtedness to be paid from taxes?

The third ballot—which is the largest—contains the names of the Democratic, Prohibition, Republican, Socialist and Independent candidates for county and state offices. There are 54 candidates' names on the ballots to be used in the first assembly district of Outagamie-co and 55 on the ballots used in the second district. In the second district William F. Rohan is the Democratic nominee for the assembly in opposition to William Bay, the Republican candidate. There is no Democratic opponent in the first assembly district to A. W. Leabs, the G. O. P. candidate.

Following is the list of candidates:

Leaves Driven by Wind Raise Havoc At City Aerotor

'Come little leaf,' said the wind one day, 'We'll play together and clog up the spray.'

That may be a departure from the familiar rhyme, but that is what occurred at the city pumping station and filtration plant a few days ago when huge clumps of leaves clogged up the nozzles of the aerator.

An investigation, by W. U. Gallaher, plant superintendent, revealed that strong winds were blowing thousands of leaves onto the Fox river, and that when they reached the sand bars in the river at the 24 inch intake above Memorial bridge they were sucked into the pumps, and passed into the nozzles in the aerator, shutting off the circulation.

There was no damage to the plant, nor were operations seriously hampered, but considerable work was required to clean out the leaves, Gallaher said.

secretary of state, W. C. Pickering; state treasurer, A. V. Papst; attorney general, Burton S. Hawley; United States senator, Harvey A. Knapp.

Socialist
Governor, Frank B. Metcalfe; lieutenant governor, William Coleman; secretary of state, Arnold Zander; state treasurer, George Eaglehill; attorney general, Arthur Shucklin; United States senator, Emil Seidel.

Independent
Governor, Fred Bassett Blair, Communist; Joe Ehrhardt, Independent, Socialist Labor party; lieutenant governor, Walter A. Harju, Communist; Abe Fisher, Independent Socialist; secretary of state, Edward Nehmer, Communist; state treasurer, Otto Wallin, Communist; attorney general, Magnus Nelson, Communist; John Schleier, Jr., Independent Socialist; United States senator, Ray Hansbrough, Communist; sheriff, Frederick W. Giese; district attorney, Samuel Sigman.

This Burns Them Up
Atlanta—If the householders here want to get their leaves raked by promising the kids a big bonfire they'll have to make a state occasion of it. Police have ordered that firemen and policemen must be notified five days in advance of any leaf-burnings. A $200 fine and 30-day jail sentence may be invoked against violators.

Chamber Hits Plan to Amend Utility Laws

Too Many Dangers Under Proposed Change, It Tells Members

Citizens of Appleton are being advised by Appleton Chamber of Commerce this week to vote against the proposed amendment to the Wisconsin constitution which would allow municipalities to finance public utilities by mortgaging the utility or its income, instead of incurring a general indebtedness to be paid by taxes.

The proposed amendment to Section 3 of Article 11 in the state constitution will be submitted to a referendum vote at the polls in the general election next Tuesday.

Two special committees of the chamber spent many hours making a thorough study of the referendum, and the findings of these two groups were found to be identical, both being opposed to the proposed amendment.

The first committee was composed of William Palatuck, F. F. Wheeler and J. R. Reid, and the second, E. A. Dettman, David Smith and K. H. Corbett.

When the referendum was presented to the chamber of commerce for a vote in February, 1931, 120 votes were cast, 98 opposing the amendment, and 22 favoring it. The board of directors unanimously accepted the mandate of the membership.

Here Is Report

Following is the report of the committee:

"Adoption of this amendment would pave the way for acquisition of public utility properties without giving sufficient weight to the possibility that the utility might eventually become a serious burden upon the public, because it is reasonable to assume that if a utility's earnings are insufficient to meet interest and principal payments the municipality will be compelled to bond itself to save its investment in the utility property.

The amendment might be the indirect means of paying for the public bonded debt to pay for properties that cannot pay for themselves, and at a time when delinquencies are as great as at present, and when the ability of the taxpayer is already strained to the limit, it would be a mistake to further enlarge the opportunities to increase the tax burden."

The committee reported that at the present time municipal bonds for public utility purposes are usually issued as a municipal obligation and a liability on all of the assessed property. This makes them a good investment for the public when so issued, and they must remain within the five per cent limit of assessed value along with all of the other municipal bond issues, it was pointed out.

Sees Dangerous Angle

This group also observed that the amendment will make it possible to bond the utility property only without obligating the general taxpayers. This makes the bond unsafe for the general purchaser who does not know of this particular feature.

The committee further points out that by passage of the amendment, there would be no legal limit to the amount of bonds a city could issue for the acquisition and operation of public utilities. It believes that such a policy is far from being safe.

In letters being sent to citizens this week the chamber makes the following plea: "We therefore urge all present and future taxpayers who really have the desire to keep down taxes and the opportunity, for taxing, and who desire to maintain the high standard, with their low rate of interest, of our municipal securities, to actively participate in the defeat of this amendment."

Patrolman Suspended After Wife Is Wounded

Kenosha (P)—Joseph Miller, Kenosha patrolman, was suspended from the department by Chief John Sullivan today until the police and fire commission has an opportunity to act on the officer's story of a shooting in his home last night.

Miller's wife is at a hospital with a bullet wound in her leg. Miller said they had quarreled and as he was preparing to go to work he discovered his wife had a revolver in her hand. He said he knocked the gun from her hand and it discharged as it fell. He called a police ambulance and had Mrs. Miller taken to the hospital.

The officer was arrested but released following the suspension order. The police and fire commission meets Nov. 10.

Widow of "T. R." Urges Reelection of Hoover

New York (P)—From the peace of Oyster bay, where Theodore Roosevelt sleeps on a grassy knoll, a shy lady in black has stepped into the clamor of a great political campaign.

The widow of the 26th president of the United States came to the aid of the 31st president last night. In an appearance that was a surprise to the audience, at Madison Square garden she made one of the few speeches of her long life.

A roar of welcome greeted her as she stepped forward, bareheaded, to face the throng that stood on its feet and gazed into her face. The cheering went on. Mrs. Hoover, on the platform beside her, laid down her bouquet of chrysanthemums to applaud with the multitude.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, who is 71 years old, stood there, calmly smiling. At last she lifted a black-gloved hand for silence. Her voice, clear though not strong, was heard: "I am a real New Yorker," she said, "and it is fitting and right that I should welcome the president of the United States into this city, where I have spent my childhood and my early youth. I greet him with affection and admiration."

A hush was on the audience. She went on to describe the president as a "man whose constant care and every thought has been for those in need and those in suffering—this great leader of our nation who has devoted long days of concentration and many sleepless nights to the service of his country."

"It is with very great pleasure that I introduce the president of the United States," she said, and stepped back out of the limelight.

Contract Experts Remain Doubtful About New Rules

Complicated System of Scoring Among Chief Objections

BY TOM O'NEIL
New York (P)—Contract experts said they had many misgivings as the new code of rules went into effect today.

Several stressed the lack of simplicity in scoring no trump tricks below the line and doubled undertricks.

Criticizing in particular the varying count of no trump tricks over book, 30 for the odd-numbered tricks and 40 for the even-numbered, Willard S. Karn suggested that suit valuations be revised forthwith to 30 for no trump, 25 for majors and 20 for minors, with a count of 80 for game.

Ely Culbertson warned that no card game with a complicated count could endure.

P. Hal Sims said it was a great mistake to change calculations while the numbers of devotees of the game were still rapidly increasing. He expressed fear that many players would adhere to the scoring methods they knew. The reaction might be so unfavorable, he said, that future changes would not be under the guidance of the Whist Club of New York.

So far as his personal play is concerned, Sims is delighted. He believes that his requirements for stronger hands to open the bidding in first and second positions than in third and fourth will enable him to penalize opponents more than ever. He thinks more attention will be paid to his method of bidding slams, cut bidding of ace at partners have agreed upon the trump.

Defend Bonus Increase
Among the few bridge-masters defending the increased bonus for grand slams were Shephard Barclay and Gratz M. Scott. Barclay regards the new slam premium as a forward pass in football; it gives the one behind a chance to get ahead quickly. Scott said that the heavy bonus would add zest to this game.

The bonus found little favor with most tournament players. Culbertson predicted a malignant rush of grand slam bidding by play as a general result. He said that they would lose many a rubber they could win by confining themselves to little slams. He predicted that the grand slam bonus would be barred from tournament play.

Culbertson, David Burnstone and Sims expressed the thought that in tournament play the swing for a successful grand slam will be so great that at times it may be impossible for a better team to overcome the lead an inferior one attains by shooting the works on a slam. Hitherto Sims has forbidden his teams to bid grand slams. Sidney S. Lenz said he was disappointed that penalties for underbid not vulnerable undertakes were not increased to deter psychic bidding, but he thinks the new code will be accepted quickly by the public.

Committee Approves Of Class A License

A police and license committee report, carrying a 4 to 2 vote in favor of granting a Class A license to Earl Tock, 312 S. Oneida-st., will be presented at the meeting of the common council Wednesday evening. A minority report will be submitted by the two aldermen who voted against the granting of the permit.

The building at 312 S. Oneida-st. was padlocked last spring by the federal court. The Tock application seeks a permit to operate a soft drink parlor in the rear end of the same building. The two aldermen who voted against the permit, Mike Steinhauer, chairman of the committee, and Oren Earle, feel that a new permit should not be granted for a place that is now under padlock. The four aldermen voting in favor of granting the license are George Brautigam, Harvey Kittner, Walter Gmeiner and Harvey Pribe.

Red Cross Plans Its Relief Work

Cotton Goods Will Be Distributed by Town, Village Groups

Approximately 50 persons, representing the various towns, villages and cities in Outagamie-co, attended a meeting of the Red Cross last night at the Y. M. C. A. to discuss relief work for the winter and plans for the membership drive and roll call later in the month.

Because the distribution of cotton cloth involves the making of garments locally by volunteer workers, it was decided to name town, city and village committees, several members of which are women who in turn will organize groups similar to the war-time knitting and sewing clubs. They will make articles of the cotton goods distributed in the county and acting in cooperation with the various town chairmen and village presidents, and will distribute the finished article and cloth.

Representatives of these groups also will be asked to serve as representatives on the county Red Cross board to act as contact agents. They also will take active part in organizing their various districts for the Red Cross roll call.

Another meeting has been scheduled for 3:45 Wednesday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. at which time roll call organization will be completed and the county representatives will submit lists of needy families in their district, number of persons in the families and their ages.

Steady Jobs Chief Needs, Kohler Says

Adequate Markets for Farmers Also Required For Lasting "Relief"

(By The Associated Press)

Starting the third and last week of his gubernatorial campaign, former Gov. Walter J. Kohler, Republican nominee, outlined to an audience at Kenosha last night an administrative program looking forward "to the time when steady jobs for workers and adequate markets for farmers will do more than stave off disaster from day to day."

Relief for the unemployed, the home-owning workingman and Wisconsin's farming population must be undertaken, he said, not only as an emergency measure, but also with the view of giving them a more equal chance in better times.

"Let no one think that the problems of these specially distressed groups are going to be finally solved by unemployment relief or a lightening of property taxes on small homes and farms," Mr. Kohler said.

"That would be like expecting to restore an injured man merely by giving first aid or to cure a malignant disease by soothing the patient with drugs. Only when there are steady jobs for the workers and adequate markets where the farmers can dispose of milk and produce, can anything more be accomplished than to stave off disaster from day to day."

Restoration of normal employment and restoration of the farmers' home market depend upon a revival of activity in productive enterprise, he said, but that revival will be retarded, if not prevented by the imposition of excessive tax burdens.

Relief Necessity

"Such taxes as are actually necessary must be paid by those who have money to pay with," he continued. "Necessary relief must be provided the destitute. The law enforcing and protective duties of government must be met. Regulation of carriers, of utilities, of sales of securities, and like activities must be thorough, for the savings of the people far outweigh the cost. The youth must be educated and the public health must be protected."

"There must be no waste," Mr. Kohler said, in accomplishing these and other essential activities of the state government. "Waste means not only the throwing away of money—it means also that less useful work is accomplished," he said.

"Whatever public works may be undertaken to provide jobs must be of a sensible and practical kind," Mr. Kohler said. "Funds for relief, whether through work or as direct assistance, must be administered honestly for the single purpose of helping the unemployed wherever the need exists and not go helping any political group."

"Any governmental activities that are non-essential should, of course, not be undertaken at a time like this. Well-managed relief measures are essential, while blundering, wasteful measures may actually postpone the real solution of the unemployment problem."

"There are those who try to ridicule and belittle business administration and economy in government as a sort of worship of the dollar. There are few citizens today, I believe, who will not tell you that one of the greatest services that could be done, they would be to save them a dollar or make it possible for them to earn a dollar here and there."

Harry Dahl, Republican nominee for lieutenant governor, said in a campaign address at Mauston that a comparison of Republican and Democratic administrations, whether in national, state or municipal affairs, will prove the fallacy of the Democratic claim to economy and low taxation.

THE WORD CHRYSAANTHEMUM means golden flower, but the plant breeders have given this blossom to the world in many colors. The Chrysanthemum is a plaything of plant experts because it yields so easily toward new varieties and new shades. One color, however, that the experts have failed to produce is blue. Chrysanthemums were introduced into the western world in 1789 and immediately became a favorite flower. In Japan, one of the highest honors a man can attain is to become a member of the Imperial Order of the Chrysanthemum.

Kill Quack Grass By Work in Fall

State Expert Points Out That Present Season Is Best

This fall, when many Outagamie county farmers are working their fields to deal quack grass roots a final blow before the ground freezes, the job will be both easier and more effective if we will just let the weatherman help, according to Gus Sell, county agent.

That is why George M. Briggs, of the College of Agriculture, is urging that whenever possible quack grass roots be brought to the surface of the ground this fall, so that the freezing and thawing of the fall and winter months will help in the killing process.

Any kind of implement that will bring the roots to the top of the ground will do, he emphasizes, whether it be the spring tooth harrow, the corn cultivator, an old seeder, or a quack grass digger. If plowing is to be done, it should be shallow, just to the depth of the roots.

"We might just as well take advantage of nature in this battle against quack grass," Briggs states. "When quack grass roots are left buried in the ground over winter, nature protects them, but when they are brought to the top of the ground in the fall where they will be exposed to the freezing and thawing process, then nature helps kill them out."

The program against quack grass which, perhaps, will come as near as any to making quackless farms, Briggs suggests, is that of bringing the roots to the surface in the fall, repeating the process in the spring up to corn planting time, and then planting the corn in check rows for cross cultivation.

School Gets Shipment Of Books From State

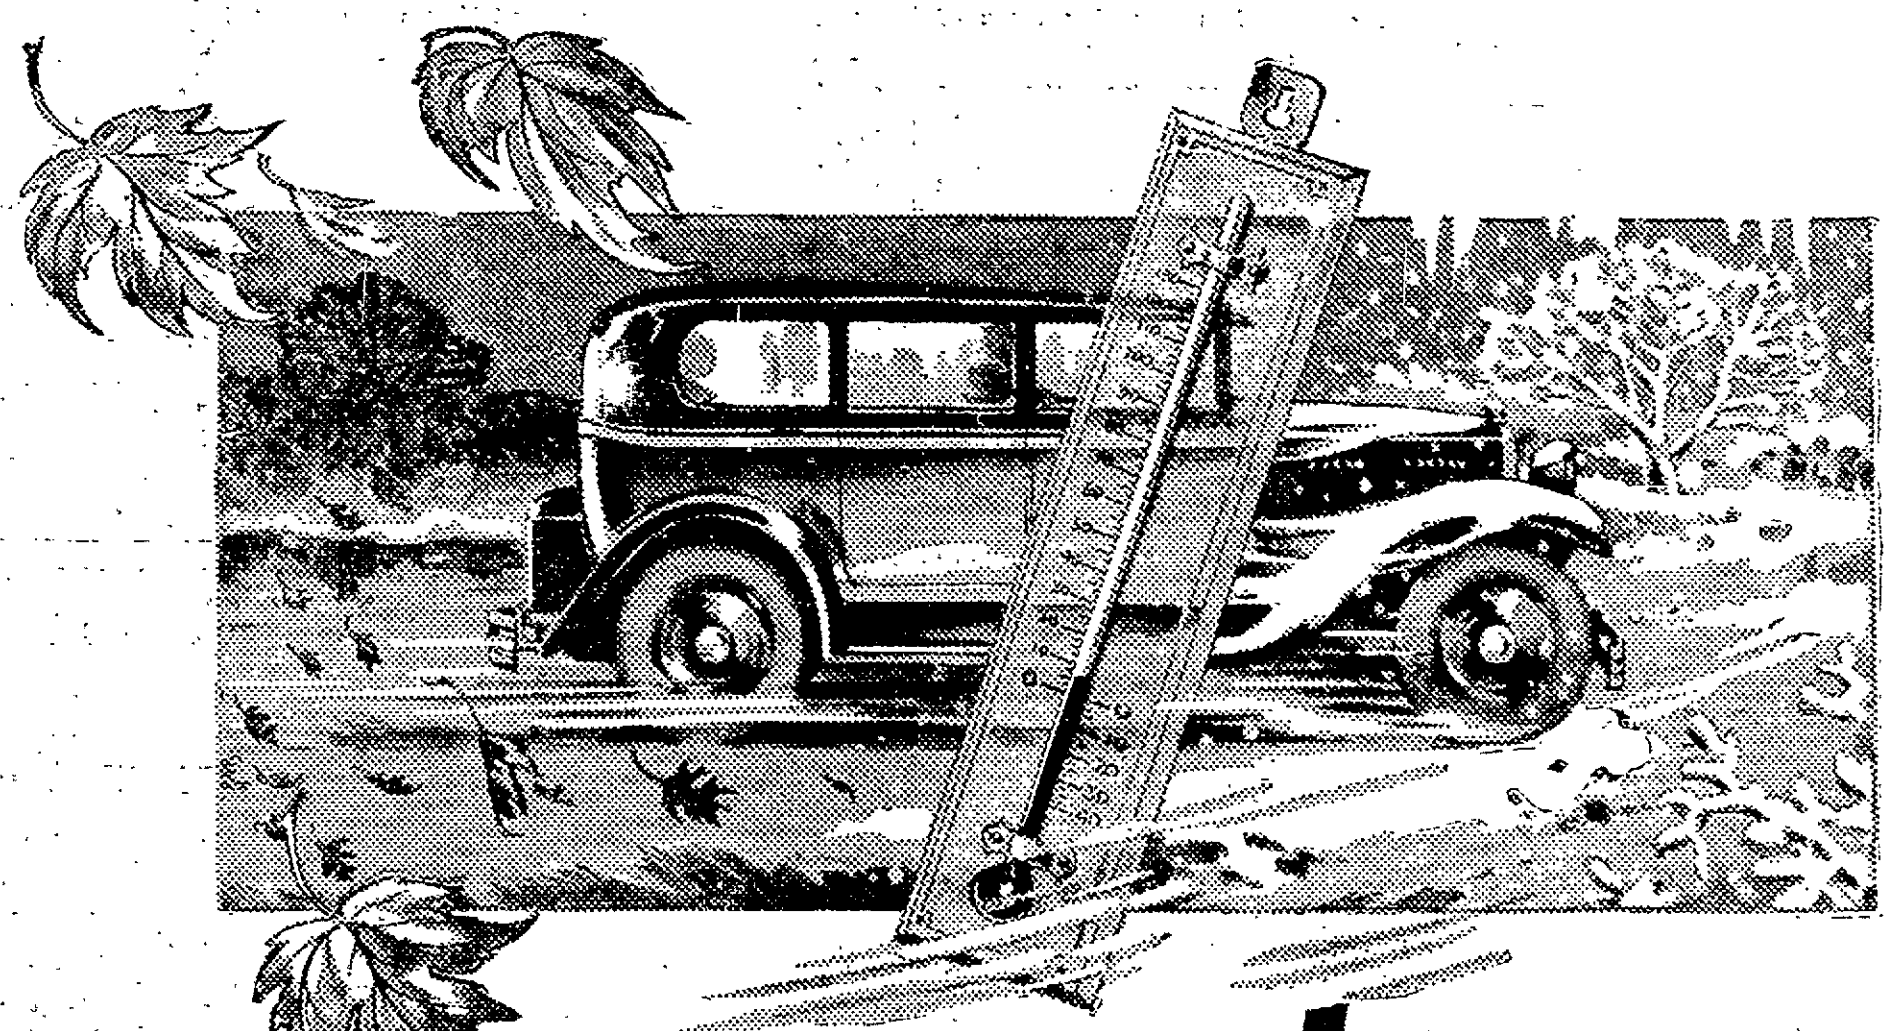

A consignment of books has been received at the Brookside rural school, town of Center, from the state's free public library service at Madison and the books will be loaned to anyone residing in the school district, according to Miss E.leanor A. Torrey, teacher. The school also has on a hand a quantity of back numbers of a good magazine which will be lent out. The books and magazines will be loaned out from the school until next April.

Police here have been asked by Nielsville officials to help in the search for Claus Hapsburg, 53, of route 1, Owen, who wandered from home last week and hasn't been heard of since. Hapsburg talks with a Swedish brogue. He has light hair and two fore fingers are missing from his right hand. He weighs about 160 pounds and is five feet, 10 inches tall.

THE FRANTIC STAGE
Although the designation "Emotional Stage" which we applied to the last part of the pending campaign appears correct, those who have a fondness for exact expressions will feel that accuracy has been more nearly approached in terming the last week of the campaign the Frantic Stage.

Possibly we should start this stage with Hallowe'en, so appropriate with its grinning pumpkins, upturned sidewalks, turned over garages and other forms of devilry.

The Frantic Stage does not present the case of the Four Horsemen. There is one rider at this time and his name is Fear. His mount is a cadaverous nag, unsure of foot, aswate and atremble, but snorting out warnings and imprecations, threats dire and threats sinister, even as its scurvy and mangy hide seems about to fall apart. It may be a hard week to sleep.

The voter must shake himself free from this frenzy, simply because there isn't anything to it.

The presidency does not lie between Herbert Hoover and Zack Foster, one of those psychopaths called communist. Even Norman Thomas, the intellectual Socialist, doesn't claim a remote chance of carrying a single one of our 48 states.

The election lies between Hoover and Roosevelt, both high-minded, well trained, patriotic Americans, either of whom, we have no doubt, would willingly and quickly sacrifice his life to bring blessings upon the American people.

The Republican party is behind in the race. That accounts for the issuance from its side of this scare-like-the-devil stuff. Some of the propaganda constitutes fair and legitimate argument. Some of it transcends credulity. A great share of it is misrepresentation in that the position, deliberately taken by Governor Roosevelt upon various questions, the tariff particularly, is violently misstated.

It may help the voter stay on the ground to ask himself: "If I were unfortunate enough to be elected to that place without rest and without privacy called the presidency, what would I do, inaugurate a plan to ruin the nation, or would I do my careful best to faithfully answer the hopes and the prayers of striving humanity?"

Of course, those with upset mind, nervous beyond description, will imagine that either man will take the oath of office with hatred in his heart and perjury on his tongue. One candidate to them is seeking to betray this nation and its people. In fact we have never had a president against whom there was the slightest cause for suspicion. Neither have we ever had one whose personal honor was sullied by taint or corruption.

And we're not going to start now.

The trouble of course is in the frantic state of mind, the extreme partisanship of those actively engaged in the fray, for the real truth of it is that we are going out of this depression, and that while the policies of the candidates are not in all things the same, we are going out of the depression just the same, under either.

PROTECTION AGAINST "MARCHES"

Regardless of fine-spun legal technicalities the government has the right, and should exercise it, to protect itself against any new "marches" on the capital such as occurred last spring and summer in the case of the Bonus Expeditionary Force.

Wisdom born of experience probably accounts for the recent commendable action by the leaders of that organization in presenting their requests to the President through a committee appointed for that purpose. They were respectfully received at the White House and would have been so received had they proceeded in a similar manner previously.

However, there are reports of new enterprises of similar character under way, including a "hunger march" this winter after congress convenes and promoted by communist agencies.

Under the Constitution the right of petition is inherent to every citizen but it was intended that the government should do its work free from all intimidation and annoyance. When minority groups congregate at the capital with noisy and threatening demeanor either for subversive purpose or to force the enactment of selfish legislation, an intolerable condition is created. If not stopped there is no telling how great such demonstrations may become, or how menacing.

At present the District of Columbia police are operating under emergency orders to prevent all organized bodies from entering the district unless it is established that they have a lawful purpose and that they are not likely to disturb the peace or become public charges.

Prior to his recent resignation, General Pelham G. Glassford had requested that these emergency orders be embodied in an act of Congress for the future protection of the government "with undisputed authority to evacuate any army of indigents after their constitutional rights have been exhausted." Should such an act be passed it could well provide also some protection against many other, though perhaps less menacing types of lobbyists who are continually suspending Damoclean swords over the heads of timid statesmen.

REGULAR MESSAGE TO EMPLOYEES

Over at Detroit is a concern called Frederic B. Stevens, Inc. It is a big concern. It employs a great many hands. It manufactures foundry equipment and supplies. Among other one of its big customers is the Ford Company.

The head of Frederic B. Stevens, Inc. is Mr. Stevens himself. We never saw him. We'd like to. He is a real, regular, honest-to-goodness American.

After several employers of labor started what looked like the old "squeeze play" concerning the best way for their employees to vote, Mr. Stevens apparently made up his mind to blow some of the fog away. Recently his employees found in their pay envelopes a little card from the boss. It read thus:

"It makes no difference to you how I vote, and it makes no difference to me how you vote.
"Coercion has no place in American politics.
"As a businessman and your employer, I want to say to you that I have confidence in your judgment, and no matter which way the election goes America will go on."

Mr. Stevens is to be congratulated not alone for his honest and outspoken manner but because his obvious purpose is to avoid a flood of Fear Talk, with its devastating effect at a time when the country can ill afford anything more of a harmful nature.

But perhaps we should congratulate the employees. They have a real boss.

Opinions Of Others.

JAPAN NOT LOGICAL
An American correspondent in Tokio who professes to be open-minded writes: "The only protective agent for foreigners and their interests in all Manchuria is at the moment Japan. Withdraw that defense and immediately the country will be plunged into a chaos of murder and rapine that will shock the world. In the face of those conditions it is a waste of time to talk of the Nine Power Treaty or the integrity of China, which does not exist and never has existed."

This is so good that it must be attributed to the superior brand of tea served by the Tokio diplomats. For if dispatches from Mukden and Harbin are to be believed, there has never been quite so much chaos, murder, rapine, train wrecking, banditry and the like, as since the Japanese took Manchukuo under their protection. The Manchukuo writ runs, apparently, just as far as a Japanese army detachment can extend, and when it has succeeded in "pacifying" a part of the country, and moves to another, the old riot breaks out in the wake of its retreat.

But suppose Manchukuo were becoming a bower of Eden under Japanese control, with the lion and the lamb lying down with each other and eating the same soy beans, would not the same logic that admits Japan to Manchuria also admit her to any other Chinese-inhabited district? Her rights were violated in Manchuria? She claims they were and are being violated at Shanghai, and wherever else the boycott against her goods is operative. And certainly, with five civil wars in operation, and with Communist band active in many provinces, China can scarcely be called a paradise for foreigners. Therefore—according to the Japanese reasoning which so appeals to this correspondent—any nation is entitled, treaties notwithstanding, to send armies to China and iron out the rights of foreigners, or "pacify" her troubles in the name of self-preservation, have you?

The logic doesn't seem to hang together.—Detroit News.

LAWLESSNESS

The invasion of Franklin county in the state of Illinois by "the advance guard of an army of striking coal miners estimated at between 10,000 and 20,000," for the purpose of "persuading" 1,200 other miners to stop work, is the most conspicuous example in day's news of the rampant lawlessness which is, perhaps, the most ominous symptom of the world's malady.

But the standard of law observance in the United States is very low; in the state which includes Chicago and Herrin it is notoriously far below the average; and though the scale of this latest attempt at "persuasion" is seriously embarrassing the local authorities there is no reason to fear that it will spread to other states.

The latest news from Germany, though it may be less spectacular, is of immeasurably greater importance. Twenty years ago Germany and the United States were, perhaps, in the matter of law enforcement, at the opposite extremes among the great nations of the world. The Standards of the United States were already very lax. Germany, on the other hand, was as orderly as Britain, but the order was enforced by a military despotism which was independent of popular control and showed little respect for dangerous theories about the "liberty of the subject."

Only One is master in this country, said the Kaiser. That man am I. Who opposes me I shall crush to pieces. . . there is only one law, and that is my law.

It was a simple and, for the Kaiser, a comfortable creed, but the results of his attempt to extend it to other parts of Europe were less satisfactory. One of them was that the Allies, who had sometimes seemed to confuse himself with the Almighty, is now in exile at Doorn, while the great soldier, who nearly led the greatest of armies to victory, is now endeavoring as the president of a German Republic to maintain law and order within its own territories, even in Berlin itself, with dubious success.—Evening Post (New Zealand).

JUST one week more folks, that's all you have left. . . and what a week it is. . . and to think that you don't know for a year or so whether you voted the right way or not. . . campaign promises are campaign promises and all that, but old Pa Time is the gent who decides just how much promises amount to, just how potent the policies of the government really are and whether we should have kept up with the same group. . . meanwhile we hear of the dicker among the Republicans to fly Prexy Hoover out to the west coast—there—whether the plan goes through or not—looks like one of the best bits of political adroitness and resource we've ever heard about. . . no matter what names the Democrats might call the stunt, it's still the type of thing needed to swing votes back to the Republican ticket during this frantic week.

The Column Picks Up a Laurel Wreath.

Last Saturday, the column went allegedly coccodrillo and did some prognosticating of football games that day which just weren't in line with what anyone else predicted. We selected seven games. Four of our bad guesses turned out to be clean, wholesome and correct. Another resulted in a tie, which is on our side because that game—Ohio-Wisconsin—was supposed to have been a push-over for Ohio. Two of the "wrong" guesses were wrong, yet one of them, the Princeton-Michigan game, would have been in our favor, had Princeton possessed a punter. There is but one regret: three other underdogs whom we would have predicted to win were omitted. They were West Virginia, Oskosh and U. S. C. L. A.

Nevertheless, even had all the other guesses been wrong, the prediction of a Pittsburgh victory over Notre Dame would still have made us an oracle.

But this week an oracle, next week a chump.

Football talk reminds us that the Packer game last Sunday was worth anybody's time. Even folks who object to the pro game on the basis that it lacks color, (not excepting your correspondent) or that they don't understand enough about the game itself to enjoy an exhibition of good football, would have gotten a kick out of that performance. The last half was a rout, yes, but it was a thrilling rout. We aren't plugging for a free pass, either. The home season is over. We've seen Packer games that were boring, too.

Most of the people who object to radio programs because of the preponderance of jazz music will be glad, after November 8, to listen to nothing but hot-cha stuff for a long while. Political speeches over the air do that to one.

If shirt or coat you chanced to lack
He'd give the one that robed his back.
He'd give you food; he'd give you drink;
He'd never pause of cost to think;
To any volume on his self,
He'd gladly let you help yourself;
He'd give you many a good cigar;
Buy tickets to your church bazaar;
To help some poorer man to live
He'd never hesitate to give;
He'd give to missions, clinics, schools,

And all there is to give to, but

Personal Health Talks

Noted Physician and Author

BARE KNEES AND GOOD HEALTH

Correspondent sends in a clipping and asks for my view of the subject. The clipping purports to be the views of several world famous authorities, whose names are not divulged. One of the coy authorities is quoted as follows:

"Bare knees in damp weather presuppose to arthritis. People have enough trouble in their knees without adding a draft reach the child, and he would prohibit all rough play in order to protect the little darling against stone bruises, skinned shins and punches in the nose."

The prize "authority" of the lot divests himself of this one: "Doctors have noted an increase in cases of inflammation of the bladder among those who dress scantily. This is thought to be due to chilling of the lower parts of the body."

This hypothetical "authority" makes use of the old device—he re-lapses into the passive or furtive mode. He doesn't say "I think" or even "we doctors think," but "it is thought." For all you know, all this thinking may be done by the office boy or the janitor. You're just a dumb customer and if it ever does occur to you to wonder who does the thinking you are too timid to call the bluff.

There is no scientific evidence that bare knees in damp weather predispose to any disease or in any way imperil health.

The clinical, actual or everyday observation is that barring the knees is a healthful practice whenever the child (or adult) finds it comfortable.

Years ago, when women began to follow the fashion of scanty attire, some of our best medical authorities of the day named one of them here—in this connection) deplored the fashion on the ground that it would subject young women to greater danger of bronchitis, pneumonia and tuberculosis. They subsided at length when unanswerable statistics proved that these afflictions are less prevalent among young women today than ever before—even tuberculosis is not more prevalent among young women than it is among young men.

Whatever our medical theories of the past may have been—and these old theories are the popular beliefs of today—fair consideration of the facts leads to the inexorable conclusion that nudity, nakedness, exposure of the skin to sunshine and the air is always healthful if it is comfortable. If any such exposure is uncomfortable, why, put something on and be comfortable, you ninny.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Baby's Head Is Bent

Son 4 1/2 months old was premature and remained in hospital three months. In hospital they always kept him on his right side and I have thought that was correct, but a week or two ago I noticed that his head is rather one-sided. Will this right itself in time? (Mrs. R. D. McC.)

Answer—So far as the symmetry of head is concerned it doesn't matter which side baby sleeps on. But train your baby to sleep on either side or rather don't cultivate neurotic adherence to any particular position for rest. Such lordosis is quite common in infancy and spontaneously corrects itself, if the baby gets his open air and sunlight, sound nutrition, and especially his vitamin rations.

Bruiise Marks

Why a person shows bruise marks from slightly touches or pressure? Is there any way to prevent an unsightly mark like that after a slight bump? (Mrs. S. A. L.)

Answer—Purpura, scurvy or a similar condition that is hereditary may account for it. I know of no remedy.

Popcorn
Approximate number of calories in a 10 cent sack of popcorn. Shredded wheat with milk, with and without sugar. (T. Y.)

Answer—Popcorn has approximately the same food or nutritive value, calories per ounce or pound, as has oatmeal, 1,650 calories to the pound. One shredded wheat biscuit yields 110 calories. Milk, 20 calories in the ounce. Cream, 120 calories in the ounce.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

EACH Tynmite began to grin and then the whole bunch hoped right in the box that was the body of the funny, wooden horse.

"The knowledge bug cried, 'That's the way! And now you'll have some fun today. Don't let it scare you if you travel on a zigzag course.'

"The horse can fly both here and there, as long as it is in the air. Of course when it is on the ground, it walks instead of flies. 'Its wings, however, are real strong, so it prefers to sail along among the clouds and stars and things away up in the skies.'

Then to the Tynmites' surprise, the horse swung round and blinked its eyes. 'Well, are you ready?' it exclaimed. 'Can you all hang on tight?'

"You bet," said Scouty. "Fly away! Right in this box we all will stay. I don't think you'll have trouble 'cause we all are small and light."

The wooden horse began to run. Then up it went and, gee, what fun! "That was a perfect take-off," shouted Coppy with a smile. "You sure know how to travel fast. How long is this trip going to last? Why, I'll just bet that we've already traveled 'bout a mile."

Then Windy said, "I wonder where the knowledge bug is. In the air, or down upon the ground? That's what I'd really like to know."

A wee voice answered, "I am here. I will not leave you, never fear. Wherever you lads sail away to, I also will go."

They soon sailed through a small white cloud which pleased the happy Tyn crowd. Said Duncy, "Gee, but that was fun! It seemed just like some smoke."

"If we should come to one that's black, I hope our horse will turn right back. A black one might be filled with rain and that would be no joke." (Copyright 1932, NEA Service, Inc.)

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York—The other night I bumped into one of those parties where the hostess taxes her guests so much per head for their fun and food.

I guess I was a bit slow in getting my dollar into the till. The charming lady, wife of a magazine and radio writer, came around and gave me a gentle reminder. "Of course you know," she said, "this just helps a little bit in cutting party expenses. We like to entertain, but you know how things are now."

Everybody had so much more fun than he would have had at a club for much more money. The practice has grown, and parties where the guest must pay are no longer uncommon.

An illustrator at this party was telling of another hostess who took $5 from her guests. He thought this was a bit of profiteering, considering the flavor of the ginger ale she served, so he managed to forget to leave his five.

But the hostess must have been keeping a conductor-like eye on everybody. Two days later she sent him a bill through the mail.

Lenore Ulric is back on Broadway in another sizzling part, with critics and laymen alike rhapsodizing over her great personal appeal. Her play, as usual, is held lightly, but it's the siren from Minnesota herself who counts.

Again there is the nightly line-up at the stage door, to watch the star take her departure from the theater—a tribute paid to few actresses in these undemonstrative times.

Miss Ulric is an outstanding victim of the caprice of the movie camera, which just can't seem to record her beauty and allure. Her personality just hasn't registered.

Her charm is not confined to the stage, however. I saw her breeze into a recent club supper. Every one present—and the assemblage largely was made up of members of the profession—turned, gasped and gazed. Miss Ulric's beauty is of just that breath-taking sort, and one wonders how even a cold camera could be indifferent.

Ulric and Ina Claire probably were the most important stars developed by David Belasco in his later years. Miss Claire's venture into moviedom also was disappointing.

Crowd Picture
If you've ever wandered around in the Times Square subway station you may have noticed a row of steel lockers for the use of the public. One drops in a dime, gets a key, and has the privilege of parking articles for 24 hours.

I've often wondered what sort of things people trust to these depositories, and my curiosity has just been partially satisfied. Hurrying through the station, I saw a woman, carrying an infant, stop to unlock one of the vaults. She took out a change of baby clothing, dressed the child there before the eyes of the hurrying throng, deposited some packages she had shopped for, and then took her infant along for another assault upon the bargain counters.

A station guard said it was by no means the first time he had seen that performance there.

On Nov. 1, 1918, the First American Army, 1,000,000 strong, attacked along a 15-mile front north of Verdun, and, aided by the French, advanced four miles.

Four States Expected to Pick Winner

As Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa Go, So Goes Nation

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Enroute From the Middle West—Four states, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa will decide this election. As they go, so will go the nation.

Last month in fact early in October they looked sure for Roosevelt. Even Republican leaders admitted that if the election were held then, the president would lose the electoral votes. There was a hope expressed however that before Election day something would happen. And the odd part of it is that it has happened. The Al Smith speech aroused dry Republicans who had been prejudiced against the administration on economic issues and were preparing to desert the ticket. Also President Hoover gave some of his old supporters an excuse to go back to his standard. He did win votes by his aggressive speeches.

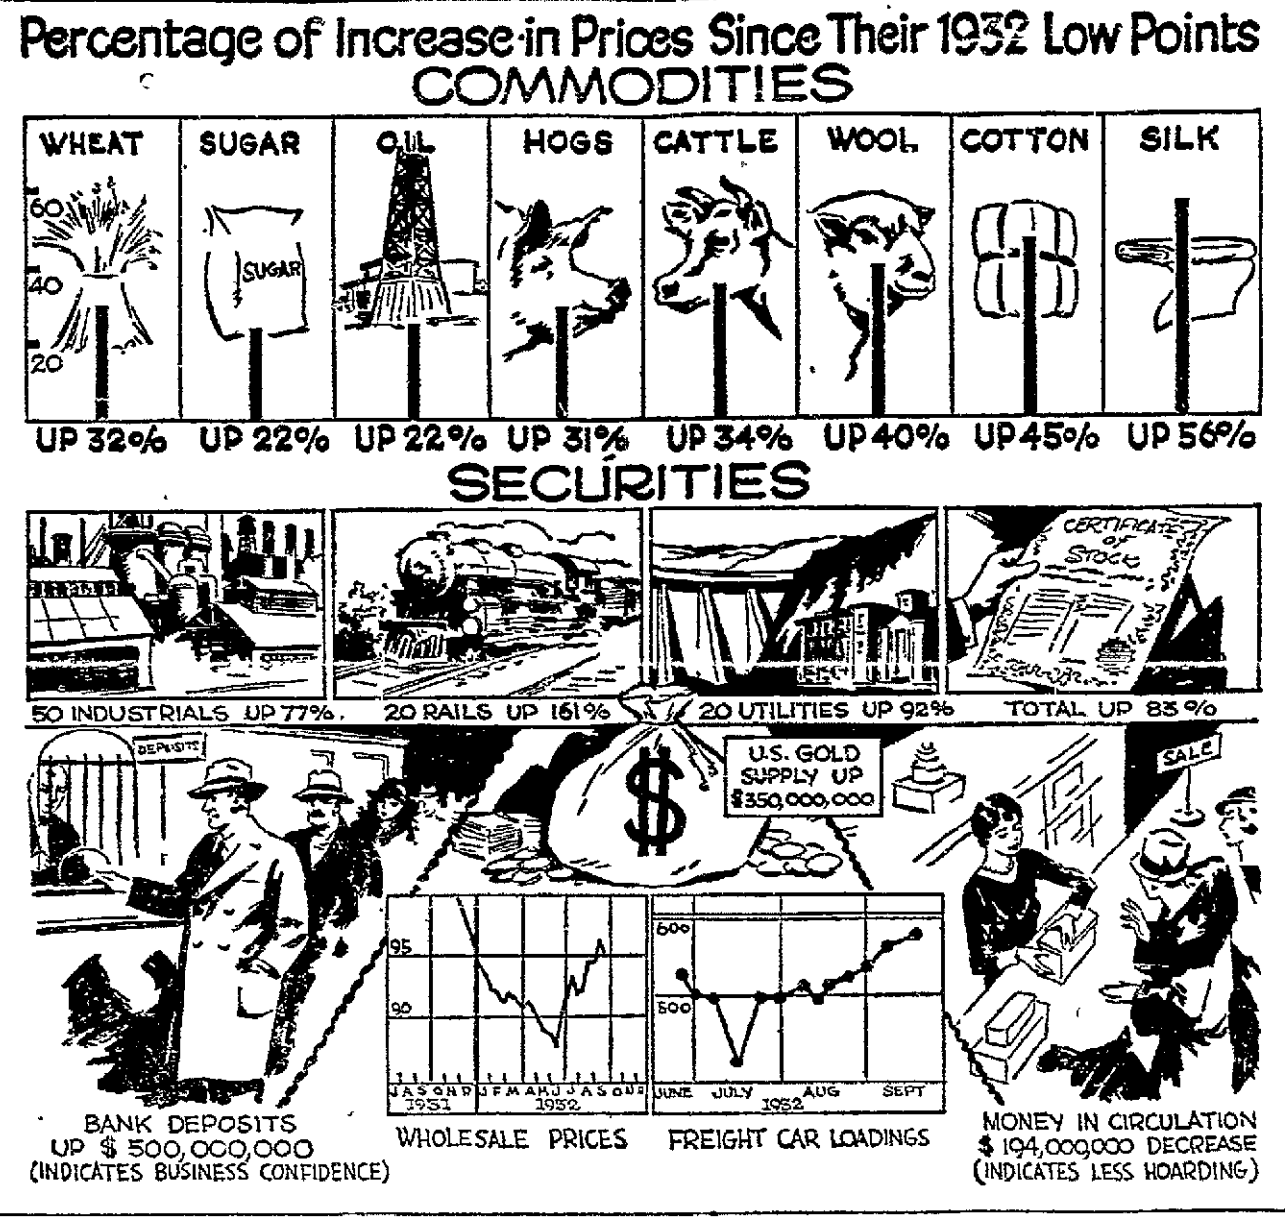

Today even the Democrats will admit that Hoover is gaining. They think, of course, the gains are negligible and will not affect the result which they expect to be a landslide, but just the same they betray a nervousness about the outcome which was not in evidence a month ago. They are like the rooters of a football team which has a margin in its favor but with still a few minutes to play in which a long forward pass can change the score materially.

Conflicting Views

Two conflicting impressions may be derived by the political wayfarer. One is that the people made up their minds long ago and that the opposition to a continuance of the president is deep-seated. Another is that the people for the most part are inclined toward Roosevelt but are quite casual about it and can be prejudiced at the last moment in either direction.

There is no doubt that the issues of the campaign can be boiled down to a paragraph: Hoover is responsible for "bad times." If he is not to blame, then he has had his chance—now let some one else try it. Danger in change? Possible inflexibility in continuity and policies, maybe a year for reorganization to be completed—all this is too complicated to understand. The average man and woman are dispirited about the employment situation whether they have jobs or not, though in recent weeks those with jobs have become concerned at the alarms being sent out that they might lose them if there is a change in administration.

Bad times, good times, can't-be-any-worse, and it-certainly-can-be-worse—well these are the thoughts running through the minds of the

Commodities Led By Farm Products In Upward Swing

Discouraging Slide of Price Curve Appears To be Halted

BY DR. JULIUS KLEIN
Assistant Secretary of Commerce

Washington—The devastating and discouraging slide of the price curve has, at least for the time being, been halted. And we have recently witnessed price appreciation in a number of commodities that even the more conservative of our business observers are describing as "most encouraging." The government's official tally sheet of price changes, compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, shows that the price level reached its low point during the week ended June 18, and that since then the movement has, in the main, been upward.

The swings toward higher levels in the prices of the various commodities have, however, not been uniform. Food, and the other products of the farmer's labor, in general, have shown a more rapid and extensive rise than other classes of goods. Prices of poultry, butter and cheese have bounced up to a point 30 per cent above their recent low points. Wheat has advanced 32 per cent; lard, 35; wool, 40, and cotton 45, while eggs and pork have soared to a point 70 per cent higher than several months ago. These upward changes have, of course, given large sections of our domestic market a substantial, though as yet merely potential, increase in purchasing power.

Although textile product prices have been considerably advanced owing partly to rising raw material prices, low stocks and increasing orders, other groups of commodities whose price changes are currently recorded, with the exception of hides and leather products, show relatively small advances. Fuel and lighting, metals and metal products, building materials, chemicals and drugs, and house furnishings goods, although extremely steady in price during the past two months, are still at, or only moderately above their low points.

What the immediate and near future, and even the more distant future, trends of prices and their effects on business may be, is not "in the cards" at the moment. The more cautious observers remind us that following the war of 1812 and the Civil War more than 20 years elapsed before prices gave evidence of being in equilibrium, and history may again repeat itself. We also know that at the present time there are huge and unwieldy surpluses of many important raw materials and foodstuffs piled up the price level by means of inflation. In our own country some carefully guarded measures have already been inaugurated. The Federal Reserve Banks have for more than five months been increasing their purchases of government securities and thus pumping funds into the tanks of commercial reservoirs. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, through the granting of loans, may make a substantial contribution to business credit. And then, of course, there is always the possibility of more direct efforts towards inflation.

But while watching the backfield play, we shouldn't lose sight of the work on the line. Attention should not be centered on price movements at the expense of all of our important and significant indicators of business conditions. In this country we have experienced many prosperous periods during eras of low or gradually recovering prices and we may expect to do so again. The man who would be well informed should follow not only the spectacular "back-field movements" of the prices but also the plugging, less spectacular "line play" of American business as shown by the movements of the Federal Reserve Board's indices of industrial production the Department of Labor's indices of employment and payrolls, and the Department of Commerce's indices of commodity stocks.

In addition, the many-unofficial but equally important and carefully constructed indicators of business compiled by private sources will be found upon study to have guidance value to most every business enterprise.

I refer to such statistics as freight car loadings, which are still an important measure of short-term changes in the movement of goods, even though their value as a long-term indicator has been somewhat destroyed by the increased use of trucks for inter-city hauling; steel operations, building contracts awarded, electric power consumption, business failures and other compilations of similar character.

Hula Queens Discover Rivals in Hula Kings

Honolulu — (P) — Milady of the hula will wear 40 blades of grass, flowers and a smile this season, but she must share these with the men, who are going in for hula dancing in a big way.

Fashion decrees that the 1932 hula skirt must reach a fraction below the knee, and if the wearer wants to be particularly smart it will be made of leaves, ranging in number from 40 to 80, depending on milady. For just ordinary wear, raffia and bark skirts are acceptable.

Flower Garland, Too

The hula queen may also wear a mu'u-mu'u of red, yellow or purple, a lei poo and a neck lei. The mu'u-mu'u is a slip without neck or sleeves; a lei poo is a flower garland for the head.

In the days of the ancient Hawaiians, the hula drew both women and men to its swaying, rolling rhythm to music reminiscent of the Spanish rumba, though of faster tempo. A score of men are taking lessons at one Honolulu studio in the present revival of the dance for men.

"Men make excellent hula dancers once they get started," said Miss Onaona Nachu, a teacher. "Of course, in the old days both men and women danced the hula together and there is nothing new to participation by both sexes."

"Men often make our most apt pupils. Sometimes they are a bit shy when they first start, and do not take enthusiastically to the grass skirt, but they soon learn that the sweep of the skirt lends the real spirit of the dance."

Men do not bedeck themselves with flowers like the women participants, but the grass skirt is the accepted badge of the dance for either sex.

The Hawaiian hula is danced throughout the islands and the fever has spread to the Waikiki tourist colony, where dancing instructors are kept busy tutoring hula queens—and kings.

Short Story of a Dime

Atlanta, Gr.—Take it from J. E. Allen, the collection business is terrible. He lent a dime to a Negro and his attempt to get it back cost him $3 and a big bump on his head. His collection excursion to the Negro's home was met with a lead pipe and his pockets were rifled.

Deny Anti-War Pact Between France, Spain

Madrid Leaders Say Herriot's Visit Has "Strengthened Ties"

Madrid —Premiere Edouard Herriot's visit to Spain was hailed by a group of outstanding political figures today as "a strengthening of the ties" between the oldest and the newest republics in Europe. The group included Martinez Barrios, former minister of communications, and Melquiades Alvarez, reformist leader. They issued this terse statement: "The visit of Premier Herriot undoubtedly strengthens the ties between the oldest and newest European republics."

Meanwhile government authorities and other leaders continued to deny rumors that France and Spain were signing an anti-war pact as reported persistently in other capitals. Miguel Maura, former minister of the interior, said he couldn't believe such reports because "the whole idea is ridiculous."

The reports apparently had penetrated here where the law students of the University of Madrid went on strike for the duration of the French premier's visit, after parading against "war and imperialism."

It was learned from a government source today that technicians of the two countries were drawing up the texts of several conventions dealing with the labor problems of both countries.

One dealt with immigration reciprocity, another with labor relief, and a third with labor transfer systems. Under the latter two treaties, Frenchmen in Spain and Spaniards in France would be able to register the policies of their country of residence. It was believed the conventions would be signed shortly.

Another round of official ceremonies and entertainments was mapped out today. The premier and his party will leave Spain tomorrow.

Engineer Prepares Plans for Deck Flume

Plans for a new deck flume to replace the S. Island-st. bridge are being prepared by L. M. Schindler, city engineer. After discovering the substructure of the bridge was almost completely undermined and that repairs would be more expensive than a new deck flume, the street and bridge committee ordered the engineer to proceed with preparations for the improvement. Street department employees will do the work.

Students Boo, Cheer Roosevelt Supporter

Boos and cheers greeted the talk on "Roosevelt for President," given by Stanley Green, Sturgeon Bay, before the Lawrence college students at the Monday morning convocation in Memorial chapel. It was the first of three talks being given for the three leading candidates for the president of the United States. Speeches for Herbert Hoover and Norman Thomas also will be given this week.

"Hoover is ill fitted for the office of president of the United States because he is no politician and lacks tact," Green stated. "Roosevelt has the personality that is needed by the man who should fill the president's chair."

Green recounted the promises made by Hoover when he accepted the nomination four years ago and stated that these promises have not been fulfilled. He said that Hoover gave the Republican party credit for the prosperity of the nation, but now he fails to take responsibility for the depression. Hoover's lack of tact was shown on the soldier's bonus question when he had the group of citizens dispersed in Washington with soldiers, Green said.

"Hoover has straddled the prohibition question and misrepresented the findings of the Wickersham report before it was published," Green said. Roosevelt possesses the qualities of personality and charm that gives him contact with the people. This is needed more at the present time than the ability to organize, which Hoover claims to have.

A straw vote was taken at the school two weeks ago and Hoover polled about 100 more votes than Roosevelt. Following the series of talks this week a second vote will be taken by the students.

Civic Council to Hold School Tonight

The first meeting of the Civic Council's social welfare work class will be held at 7:30 Tuesday evening at the city hall. It was announced today. The meeting place was changed from the Y. M. C. A. to the city hall to accommodate the more than 50 persons expected to take the work.

Miss Edith Foster, Milwaukee, assistant secretary of the Wisconsin Conference of Social Workers, will be the speaker. Aubrey Williams, secretary, originally was to handle the classes, but work in Washington, D. C. has detained him.

The classes will be held weekly for six weeks.

Crash at 115 Miles an Hour Without Injury Possible in New Safety Auto

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (Associated Press Science Editor)

State College, Penn. (AP)—"It is possible for a man, in a properly designed and equipped car, to collide, head-on, while traveling even at the terrific rate of 115 miles per hour, without being injured."

This statement is made by H. L. Yeagley, physicist of Pennsylvania State college as the result of calculations and actual measurements on a car which he saw crash head-on at 30 miles an hour into a concrete abutment.

The driver of this car, an elderly man, asleep and lying on the wheel, was unhurt. The car stopped in about 30 inches, its crumpling in that distance accorded him. Luck gave the driver the advantage of these accordin steps in breaking his impact and saved his life.

Yeagley has calculated a combination of changes in interior design of motor cars which would give any passenger the cushioning this sleeping driver had. But his figures unexpectedly indicate that the same accordin "deceleration" is practicable for excessive speeds.

He cited an actual 100-mile-an-hour head-on crash where the pilot was unhurt—when fortuitous circumstances cushioned him as science indicates everyone might be safeguarded. This was the crash-up of John Kyndle, mail pilot, against the face of Stone Mountain. Kyndle's body was stopped from 100 miles an hour to zero, Yeagley says, in a space of about 24 feet.

That is the distance that the sleeping driver's body traveled, and the space which Yeagley says is available for safely redesign in motor cars.

"The two big safety factors," he says, "are first to cause the passenger's body to stop in the car through as large a distance as possible in order to reduce the stopping or decelerating force; second to distribute the stopping force over as large a body area as possible."

Redesign suggestions to accomplish this are: "Move the dash board to within three inches of the front seat passenger."

"The steering wheel is mounted in a vertical position, with all instruments directly behind it. This procures a better distribution of the stopping force in case of collision."

The space above the windshield and that previously occupied by the instrument panel in front of driver and passenger is padded.

"This also serves to further distribute the stopping force. In addition a broad strap is supplied to stretch in front of both front and rear seat passengers."

"To increase the margin of safety further the body of the car may be mounted on horizontal shock absorbers."

President Plans

Westward Swing Before Election

Hoover Expected to Go to California to Cast Vote Next Week

mailed him and dragged him out of the garden.

Telling his vast audience that "this philosophy upon which the governor of New York proposes to conduct the campaign of the United States is the philosophy of stagnation, of despair," the president listed eight "proposals of our opponents that will endanger or destroy our system."

"Two Philosophies"

"This campaign," Mr. Hoover said, "is more than a contest between two men. It is more than a contest between two parties. It is a contest between two philosophies of government."

"We are told by the opposition that we must have a change, that we must have a new deal. It is not the change that comes from normal development of national life to which I object, but the proposal to alter the whole foundations of our national life which have been built through generations of testing and struggle, and of the principles upon which we have built the nation."

Mr. Hoover said in considering what the Democrats are proposing "we must go deeper than platitudes and emotional appeals of the public platform in the campaign, and study their records and look into the type of leaders campaigning for the Democratic ticket."

Referring to the latter, the chief executive said "I can respect the sincerity of these men in their desire to change our form of government and our social and economic system, though I shall do my best tonight to prove they are wrong."

"The crowd boomed, as the president added:

"I refer particularly to Senator Norris, Senator La Follette, Senator Curtis, Senator Huey Long, Senator Wheeler, William R. Hearst, and other exponents of a social philosophy different from the traditional American one."

Unless these men feel assurance of support to their ideas," he continued, "they certainly would not be supporting these candidates and the Democratic party. The zeal of the most desperate underdog to change our form of government and our social and economic system, though I shall do my best tonight to prove they are wrong."

Continuing, the president said the changes proposed by the "Democratic principals and allies are of the most profound and penetrating character."

Present System Threatened

"Let us pause for a moment and examine the American system of government, of social and economic life which it is now proposed that we should alter," he added. "Our system is the product of our race and of our experience in building a nation to heights unparalleled in the whole history of the world."

"It is a system peculiar to the American people. It differs essentially from all others in the world. It is an American system. It is founded on the conception that only through ordered liberty, through freedom to the individual and equal opportunity to the individual will his initiative and enterprise be summoned to spur the march of progress."

Questions often arise whether Democracy can remain master in its own house, can preserve the fundamentals of our American system. I contend that it can, and I contend that this American system of ours has demonstrated its validity and superiority over any system yet invented by human mind. It has demonstrated it in the face of the greatest test of our history, that is the emergency which we have faced in the past three years."

"We Did Succeed"

"In spite of all these obstructions we did succeed. Our form of government did prove itself equal to the task. We saved this nation from a quarter of a century of chaos and degeneration, and we preserved the savings, the insurance policies, gave a fighting chance to men to hold their homes. We installed measures which today are bringing back recovery. A million men have found jobs."

"I therefore contend that the problem of today is to continue these measures and policies to restore this American system to its normal functioning, to repair the wounds it has received, to correct the weaknesses and evils which would defeat that system."

"To enter upon a series of deep changes to embark upon this inch-long new deal which has been propounded in this campaign would be to undertake to undermine and destroy our American system."

Reviewing improvements in American life during the last generation, the president then said: "This 30 years of incomparable improvement in the scale of living, the advance of comfort and intellectual life, inspiration, and ideals did not arise without right principles animating the American system which produced them. Shall this system be discarded because vote-seeking men appeal to distress and say that the machinery is all wrong and that it must be abandoned? Should not our purpose be to restore the normal working of that system which has brought us such immeasurable benefits, and not destroy it?"

Cries of "no" greeted the president as he asked if the system should be discarded.

"List 'Dangers'"

The president then listed some of the proposals of the Democrats which he said would endanger or destroy our system.

"Expansion of government expenditure by yielding to sectional and group interests on the public treasury."

"Extension of the government into the personal banking business."

"Reduction of the protective tariff to a comparative tariff for revenue."

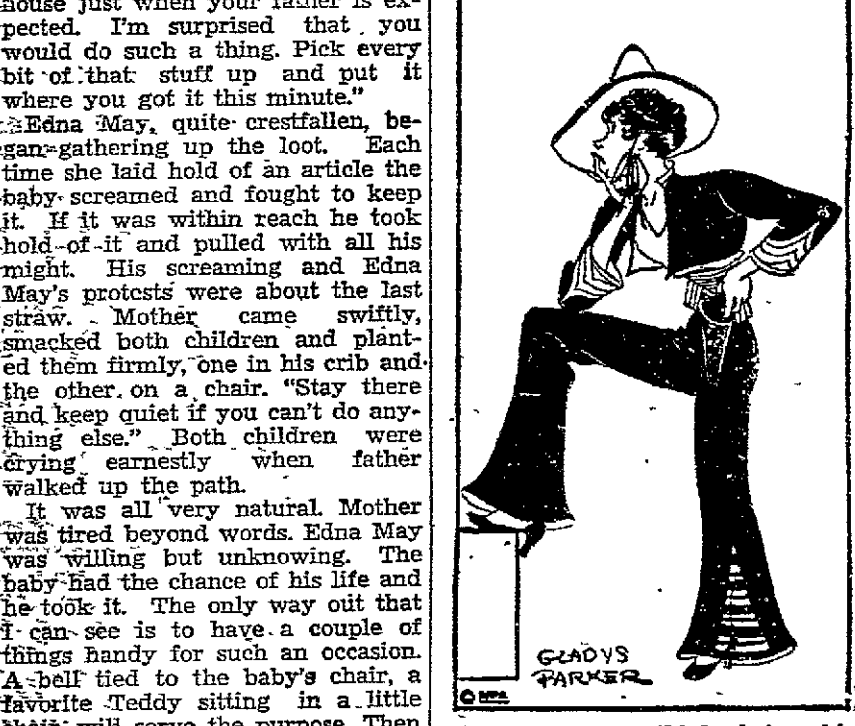

"Placing the government into the power business."

Employ Discretion When Trying to Please Baby

BY ANGELO PATRI
Mother had been canning all afternoon and her feet were tired carrying her about. She sat in a rocker on the porch watching Edna May doing her home work in the short time before dinner. The baby had fallen asleep on the couch in the sitting room. Now he awakened and cried.
"Go in, Edna May and see what you can do to please him. I'm so tired I can't move another step."
Edna May cheerfully went to the rescue. In a short time she came back. "He wants my red cap, mother."
"All-right. Give it to him. Anything to please him."
Edna May went back, not as cheerfully as she had gone in the first place. That red cap was dear to her heart and just now the precious baby put everything he could reach into his mouth.
Mother rested for a while and rose to prepare for dinner. Crossing the sitting room something caught her eye. The baby sat in the midst of a miscellaneous heap like a pirate among his treasure. "Give me," he commanded, and at once Edna May gave him. He had silver spoons, two pots, his father's best hat, an umbrella, a book, a number of dolls, a wagon, a rug and some clothespins.
"For pity's sake Edna May what is the matter with you? Here I am tired to death, I ask you to help with the baby for a few minutes and you completely upset the baby just when your father is expected. I'm surprised that you would do such a thing. Pick every bit of that stuff up and put it where you got it this minute."
Edna May, quite crestfallen, began gathering up the loot. Each time she laid hold of an article the baby screamed and fought to keep it. If it was within reach he took hold of it and pulled it with all his might. His screaming and Edna May's protests were about the last straw. Mother came swiftly, snatched both children and planted them firmly, one in his crib and the other on a chair. "Stay there and keep quiet if you can't do anything else." Both children were crying earnestly when father walked up the path.
It was all very natural. Mother was tired beyond words. Edna May was willing but unknowing. The baby had the chance of his life and he took it. The only way out that I can see is to have a couple of things handy for such an occasion. A bell tied to the baby's chair, a favorite Teddy sitting in a little chair will serve the purpose. Then when the baby is to be diverted for a few minutes the means are at hand. He can play with his ball or his Teddy or he can cry it out.
Crying it out is not so easy when one's nerves are raw but it is better than having a scene, isn't it? It is cheaper in nervous energy in the long run. It won't do to teach the baby that he is to be pleased no matter what comes or goes. Sometimes he can't be pleased and the sooner he learns it the better. It does cost a few howls but most of us can stand that.

Fine Feathers at Hospital Fashion Show

BY BETSY SCHUYLER
NEA Service Writer
New York — Autumn's at its peak these days, what with frost on the pumpkin and society on the runway, showing new clothes for sweet charity's sake.
The most brilliant fashion show to date was for the benefit of the Metropolitan Hospital, held at the Waldorf Astoria, with only social register models.
It is a relief to observe, that the best courtiers apparently differentiated this winter between the sophisticated grace of women over 30 and the insouciant femininity of youngsters. A mother-daughter picture easy on the eyes included Miss James Snowdon in a white and silver gown, with feathers about her neck, and her daughter, Mrs. Robert Herndon (sister-in-law of the ocean-flier) in a ravishing scarlet velvet ensemble, with grand leg-o-mutton sleeves and a sweet Elizabethan collar to its jacket.
Puffed Sleeves Worn
Mimi Kountze looked her most engaging in a blue velvet gown with a pearl little jacket with huge puffed sleeves, a shirt collar with bow tie and fur edging to its short peplum.
For a ravishing bride's gown, there was a delicate pink satin, modeled by Mrs. Daniel Topping, whose child-like delicacy made her a model bride.
Fine feathers certainly are in society this fall. Mrs. George U. Harris wore a handsome black velvet evening gown with much train, and topped it with what is technically known as a feather cape, but which really was a delectable little pair of feather sleeves with just a few across the back.
Jewels are sparkling on the best ears and on the best wrists, not to mention the clip and buckle route, for formal wear this winter. It looks as if it is not going to be a good year for necklaces. Modeling a smart lace evening gown with an original neckline, Edith Baker wore stunning bracelets, three of them, all diamonds and rubies, and sparkling earrings of diamonds, with tiny rubies in their midst.
Orchids are blooming on many shoulders and muffs, and I said MUFFS, for they are beginning to carry them everywhere. When winter arrives, if you have worn gardenias, change your mind about what's what. It is a year of more delicacy, and orchids express it! The other evening at the Central Park Casino Mrs. Bayard Swope, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and Evelyn Sloane all proved the new and more delicate flower touch. Mrs. Vanderbilt's orchids were the most exquisite orange, beige and brownish ones. The others were lavender.
Society on the Hunt
These are great days for riding out Long Island way. The Meadow Brook pack had its first formal cross-country run the other morning and among the earliest of the early fox hunters were Princess Xenia, formerly Mrs. William B. Lewis, Sarah Woodward, Mrs. Norland de R. Whitehouse and the Phipps sisters, Barbara and Audrey, all looking very smart in the midst of horsemen attired in the correct red jackets, with the correct Meadow Brook blue touch on their collars.
At the Saturday night Pierrette dance last week at the Waldorf Astoria there was a distinguished cosmopolitan crowd, the usually 30-50 society-steps, celebrities, group. Mrs. George Drexel Biddle was a picture in a Patou gown of white with the new low waistline, and a very brief but important ermine cape. She wore a tiny white hat, one of the half-head variety, way over on one side.
After the exercise, we are ready for the creaming. First cleanse thoroughly either with cleansing cream or with mild bland soap and warm, quite warm, water. Now apply a rich lubricating cream. Mold from the shoulders up on the left side of the neck with the four fingers of the right hand, and on the right side with the left hand. Now press and lift with the cushion parts of the fingers and then palms under the chin. A good time to do the exercise and creaming is at night before retiring. Leave a little of the cream on overnight.
Astringent Tie-Up
In the morning, wring a pad of cotton out of cold water, dip into astringent and pat over neck and under chin for a few minutes. Then open the cotton pad, place under chin so that it fits the contour securely and tie over head with a strip of gauze or linen about two inches wide. Run a piece of ice over this tie-up. Repeat two or three times every few minutes. Leave the tie-up on for ten or fifteen minutes while reading or resting. Remove. If the skin is inclined to be dry, use a little more cream after the rub.
If you would like my complete "Facial Resumé" outlining treatment for face and neck, with exact molding and patting movements, send self-addressed, stamped envelope for it. Address Miss Pierce care of the Post-Crescent.
My Neighbor Says—

Exercise is Remedy for Double Chin

BY ELISE PIERCE
Today we are going to thwart any tendency to double chin. First, we will go through a few simple exercises. Are you ready? Begin.
(1) Assume proper standing posture, feet about eighteen inches apart, head up, chin in, chest high, shoulders back, abdomen in. Stand as tall as possible. Place hands on hips. Do not move the body as you turn head as far to the right as possible. Forward. Repeat five times. Now to the left. Repeat five times. Relax.
(2) Bend head backward a little, thrusting out chin until the muscles of the neck under the chin are tense. Slowly turn the head sharply to the left until you can look over the left shoulder. Now to the right. Repeat five times alternately to each side. Relax.
(3) Now roll head around in a complete circle forward, left, back, right. Repeat six times.
(4) Drop head forward as far as possible on chest, now stretch slowly back, back until the head rests between the shoulders. Inhale deeply as you stretch back, exhale as you drop the head forward.
The value of these exercises is in stretching. As you learn to do them correctly, you will find them more and more strenuous. No willy-nilly, make-believe or the exercises won't do their good work. The fourth exercise is especially beneficial and can be done in standing, sitting or lying position. While on the back, stretch head forward on chest then back without moving the rest of the body. Then, lie face downward and raise the head backward and down.
Cream
After the exercise, we are ready for the creaming. First cleanse thoroughly either with cleansing cream or with mild bland soap and warm, quite warm, water. Now apply a rich lubricating cream. Mold from the shoulders up on the left side of the neck with the four fingers of the right hand, and on the right side with the left hand. Now press and lift with the cushion parts of the fingers and then palms under the chin. A good time to do the exercise and creaming is at night before retiring. Your Birthday

"SCORPIO"
If November 2nd is the date of your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger hours are from 12:30 p. m. to 1:45 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 5:45 p. m.
Do not expect the gods to fulfill your desires on this November 2nd. Fate will not be too kind and luck will seem to run against you. Endeavor based on right desire and accompanied by hard work will bring about satisfactory results. Directness and great forefulness will be apparent in all activities. The head will rule the heart in all affairs of a romantic nature.
The child born on this November 2nd will be possessed of great pluck and courage. Coupled with these characteristics will probably be found a great desire for physical activity and a love of adventure which will lead him into more than a few childish scrapes. These will be of harmless nature, however, so no fear need be entertained. The child will be very level headed and will have a keen sense of fair play.
Born on November 2nd, people will look at you and what you have accomplished and will be inclined to remark, "He's a lucky devil!" As a matter of fact, there is little luck in your life. Your successes are due to long and careful planning, sane judgment, and plenty of hard work. Your faculties and qualities are such that you could successfully fit yourself into any one of a number of life callings. Your talents would lend themselves most readily to some phase of commercial life. As a holder of some governmental office or as a teacher, you would do equally well. Whatever you do, however, will be well done. You are a very dependable person and a desire to be prompt to a degree is almost an obsession with you.
You may follow several pursuits in the course of your life and in all of them you will have more than slight success. Your life will be a quiet one but you will not in any sense of the word lead a routine existence. Money will not flow into your pockets in great streams, but you will always have it when needed. Both men and women born on November 2nd are essentially home-lovers and enjoy greatly the joys that are to be derived from parent-

Jacoby Proves That He Is Fine Bridge Theorist

BY ELY CULBERTSON
Experts are usually divided rather sharply in two categories—players and analysts. It is very rare to find master players who are also brilliant theorists.
Mr. Oswald Jacoby has, until just recently, been known chiefly as a player. Since his appointment as chairman of the technical committee of the United States Bridge association he has proven in more ways than one that his skill is not confined entirely to mere playing.
Mr. Jacoby is possibly best known as having been partner to Mr. Sidney Lenz in the Culbertson-Lenz match of a year ago. He was also a member of "The Four Horsemen" team, which set such an enviable record in 1931. Upon his disassociation with this team, he proceeded to prove that he was well able to win championships without his former team-mates by annexing the team-of-four challenge trophy at Asbury Park, N. J., along with Messrs. Gottlieb, Lightner and Watson.
The following hand was played by him in this tournament and should show why he is regarded as one of the finest defensive players in the country.

The Bidding:
South West North East
Dbl. Pass 1 1
3NT Pass Pass Pass
The bidding does not call for much comment. North decided not to leave the one spade Double, as his side was vulnerable and his opponents were not.
When Mr. Jacoby chose the spade Knave as his opening lead, Mr. Stearns allowed this card to hold the trick as he placed Mr. Jacoby with at least two spades. Mr. Jacoby now decided that the safe hand called for some rather drastic defensive action, and immediately laid down the Queen of diamonds.
Mr. Stearns went up with the Ace in Dummy, returned to his hand with a club and then led his heart. Mr. Jacoby now made his Ace immediately, estimating correctly that the dealer had only held one heart. His next lead was a diamond, and which ever card Mr. Stearns played he was down two tricks.
It is interesting to note that without the Queen of diamonds shift at the second trick the hand was a spread for five notrump, and this result was actually obtained by Mr. Gottlieb, who played the South hand at the same contract at the other table.

table and pressed her hand in a quick, firm gesture.
"Yes, my dear, I would have broken it. I was very much in love with you!"
"Was very much in love with you?"
Another doubt. But then, two years were 24 months, and there had been four months now of another year. And 24 months meant 112 weeks, with a few days left over. She had known many other men. He would have met many other girls. If love were real it lasted. If it wasn't, it didn't. Oh, why couldn't she look at it in that light and let it go, she asked herself? Why were women such fools?
"And now?" she said the words softly, for she had to hear him answer.
"We'll have to get acquainted all over again, won't we? But Joan, you're lovelier than ever. I think I like you better than ever. I'm sure I'm going to..."
She changed the topic. She wondered why he had not mentioned the song. He answered her an apology, or an explanation, and then she asked, "What about my song, David?"

FALL WEDDINGS
Dear Mrs. Post: My sister and I are planning to have a double wedding at home. We want to invite just the immediate families. Also we like the plan of sending handwritten invitations as you suggested sometime ago for a small wedding. We don't like the idea of sending them together. Please tell us exactly how to go about such a wedding.
Answer: You would write to your friends and your fiancée's family and friends. She, in the same way, would write to hers and his. But that both of you should write to identical relatives would be absurd to say the least. You would better divide the family list. You write to your half; "Jane is to be

"Hunk" Anderson Shakes Up Notre Dame Regulars

Others to Feel Lash if They Don't Produce

Capt. Host, Lukats and Alexander Placed on Second Team

SOUTH BEND, IND.—(P)—A drastically revamped Notre Dame football team, snapped into practice today, as Coach Anderson sought to prevent a repetition of his team's unexpected defeat at the hands of Pittsburgh. Three men were missing from the regulars' line-up—Capt. Paul Host, end, Nick Lukats, left halfback, and Ben Alexander, center. Moved from the second team to fill their places were Hugh Devore, Mike Koken and "Kitty" Gorman.

That's just a start, Coach Anderson threatened. There will be other "shake-ups" if the team doesn't capitalize upon its potential power. "We've got a lot of good material and I'm going to find out just who wants to get in there and fight," he lashed out at his squad following the last practice session.

Disension in Ranks? Revamping of the lineup gave fresh impetus to rumors that disension had crept into the ranks of the regulars, and that Coach Anderson's action was taken to present a team in future grid engagements that, if beaten, could lay defeat solely upon the other team, not internal discord.

Some observers brought Coach Anderson in for some share of criticism in connection with the "Pittsburgh upset; others attributed the defeat to "soft" early season schedule of the Ramblers.

If Coach Anderson makes good his threat, Notre Dame's future opponents may be introduced to some of the fourth and fifth squad talent at the school.

"We'll be ready from now on," Coach Anderson promised, "with some different faces in the regular lineup, unless I'm convinced that some of the other regulars can hit the ball."

IRISH PLAY KANSAS LAWRENCE—When the football teams of Notre Dame and the University of Kansas play here Saturday at Memorial stadium it will be just exactly 28 years to the day since the two schools met on the gridiron for the first and only time.

The Jayhawkers, the underdogs in this year's clash with the highly rated Ramblers of South Bend, Ind., were the victors by a 24 to 5 score in that contest played here Nov. 6, 1904.

The Ramblers were not as well known in the grid circles then as now. One scribe said "little was known of Notre Dame's strength but much fear was aroused when the players were seen." In another description the followers were told that the Irish "averaged 10 pounds to the man and have an air of decided experience."

Kansas outplayed the Ramblers, but it remained for Captain Shaughnessy, Notre Dame's right halfback, to pull the most spectacular play of the day, taking the ball "on a fluke by the Kansas backfield"—as one report described it—he ran 197 yards for the only Notre Dame touchdown. The run at that time was said to have been the longest ever made on old McCook field. The brief account of the game did not go into details concerning the sprint.

Beloit Ready for Viking Invasion

Gold Sees Win and Clean Slate in Midwest League Standings

Beloit—Having at last found a smooth working backfield combination, Coach Bob Jaggard will put his Beloit college football team against a lighter Lawrence team next Saturday in the annual Beloit "homecoming" game with a good chance for victory.

The strength of the Gold team is evidenced by the fact that both Ripon and Knox have been left in greatly weakened conditions following clashes with Beloit. Many fumbles upon the part of Beloit have kept the team from winning by one sided scores. Heiss, Fitzgerald and Gibson will work for the complete elimination of fumbles during practice this week. Other backfield men will get intense training in blocking, the other outstanding weakness of the team.

Martin and Bauer are the only men on the kick list at present. The game with Lawrence will be the third and last game Beloit will have in the Midwest conference this season. Everything points to Beloit's finishing in first place in this league.

Hagerty Makes Over Georgetown Eleven

Washington—A sturdy Irishman, Jack Hagerty, is fitting into the football principles sponsored by his former mentor, Lou Little, at Georgetown university eleven that has played five games this season under Notre Dame coaching.

Hagerty, who was seven years ago a Hoyta star and captain, wants to teach the team 10 fundamental plays of the Little system for the

New London Gridders May Play Ironwood

New London—That the Bull Dogs, local semi pro grid team, are proving a good attraction on outside fields was shown at last Sunday's game at Chippewa Falls. Approximately 2,200 paid admissions were recorded breaking Chippewa Falls' attendance record for the season. Besides being one of the first teams to score on the Marines, the Bull Dogs were the first team in years that the up-state team did not beat.

So far this season the local team has piled up 51 points to its opponents 25. On the basis of this record the Ironwood Polar Bears, champions of upper Michigan, are after the Bull Dog scalp. The only thing which might prevent the game being played, net Sunday at the Michigan city will be unsatisfactory financial and official arrangements.

Badgers, Illini Resume Relations

Game Will be Feature Attraction of Wisconsin Homecoming

Madison—(P)—The homecoming football game between Wisconsin and Illinois Saturday will be the rubber game of a match that started back in 1895.

The Badgers were supreme in the early days, winning the first four times they met Illinois. In 1907, however, the Illini came through with a victory and followed it up successively in 1914 and 1915. Since then the teams have battled on more or less even terms.

SPLEARS Wisconsin has met Illinois 16 times. Each team has won seven games while two have resulted in ties. One feature of the rivalry between the two schools is the small margin of victory that existed in all games. Wisconsin's 27 to 0 victory in 1900 furnished the greatest margin. Wisconsin supporters are earnestly hoping that the game next Saturday will not be a repetition of the homecoming affair back in 1922.

In that year Wisconsin was assured of handing the Illini a neat trimming but the scoreboard registered Illinois 3, Wisconsin 0 when the game ended. Rumie Clark kicked a field goal for the Suckers and those three points were insurmountable.

Wisconsin has scored 147 points on Illinois while the latter has run up 139 points on the Badgers.

Punts and Passes

Detroit—Oregon State's football team has a record to protect in its clash with Detroit here Thanksgiving day. The far westerners never have lost a game in Michigan. Back in 1915 they wiped up the field with a great Michigan State team and in 1929 handed Detroit its first defeat in 20 games.

Philadelphia—The odds are all against Pennsylvania checking the Pitt Panthers at Franklin Field this week. In 10 previous games between the two rivals, Penn succeeded in winning only one game—that of 1923.

Chicago—Big Ten members have enjoyed extraordinary success in their inter-sectional games this season. Of 10 games played against eastern, southern, Big Six and midwestern independent opposition, Big Ten members have won seven, tied two and lost one.

New York—More trouble seems to be awaiting Fordham and New York university, two of the biggest disappointments of the eastern campaign. Fordham, beaten by Michigan State and Boston college, now must play St. Mary's Gaels while N. Y. U., beaten by Colgate and Purdue, faces Georgia which usually plays its best football in the north.

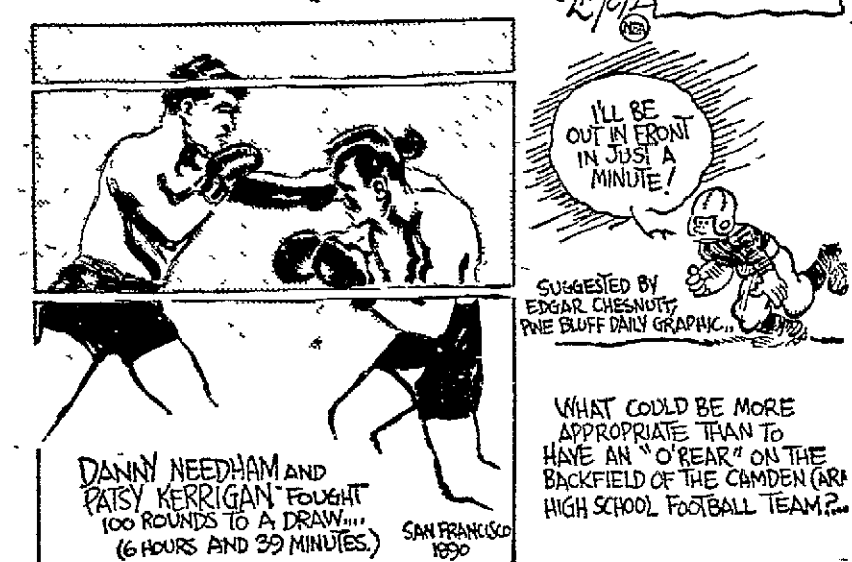

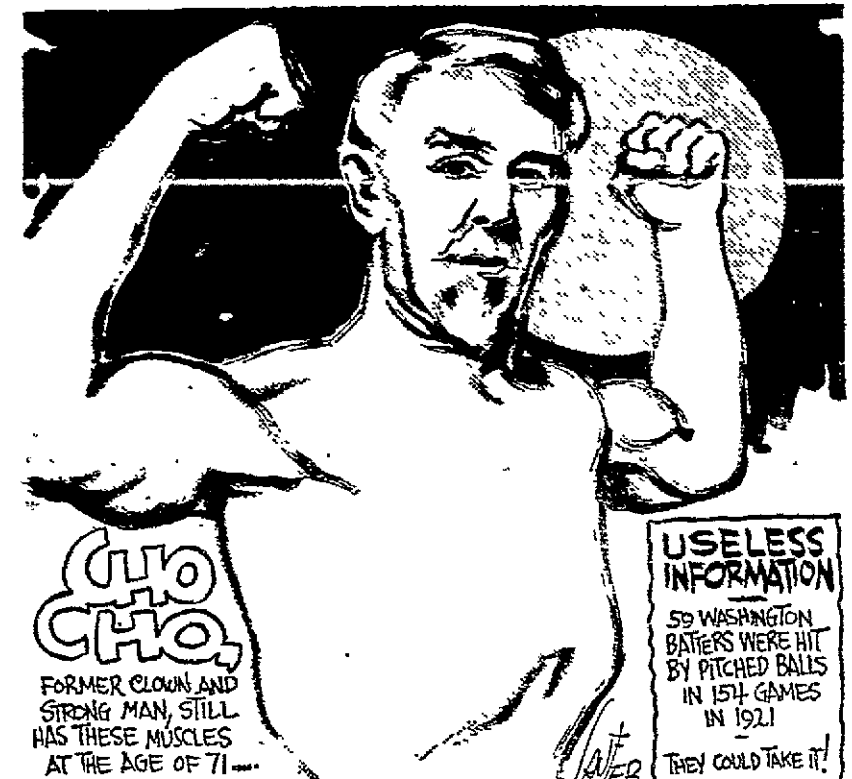

Worcester, Mass.—Anyone knowing where a good fullback can be found might get in touch with Holy Cross' coaching staff. Don Kelly and Hanus, first and second string choices at that position, both are injured and the Crusaders may have to use an untied sophomore, John O'Connor, against Brown.

Cambridge, Mass.—Eddie Casey might have given his Harvard varsity a thorough shaking up yesterday except for the fact there wasn't much to shake. Seven regulars were so badly battered they couldn't appear for practice.

game with West Virginia at Morgantown Saturday, the first tussle for Georgetown under his tutelage. Little now coaches Columbia university's squad.

It was the new coach's second day on the job. He came fresh from several seasons as quarterback on the New York Giants professional team and took over yesterday the coaching job held for two and one-half seasons by Tommy Mills, who shone as a backfield coach at Notre Dame under Knute Rockne.

Gophers Investigate Wildcat Phone System

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—(P)—Minnesota dropped the embarrassing subject of gridiron ethics today to center attention on the less philosophical problem of scoring touchdowns in Saturday's game with the University of Mississippi.

Frank McCormick, athletic director, alone pursued his investigation of a system employed Saturday by Northwestern in maintaining scouts in the elevated press box who communicated their observations by telephone to coaches on the sideline bench.

McCormick yesterday regarded the practice as "unethical" as he had Saturday when he ordered the telephone disconnected in the fourth quarter just before Minnesota scored to defeat the Wildcats 7 to 0. But today he took the position that "it wasn't very serious although new to me."

Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern, said he had used the system for some time, that assistant coaches from the vantage point of the press box kept him informed of the physical condition of his players. He said he saw nothing new or unfair in the practice.

McCormick appeared to be disturbed because his department had not been asked permission to set up the telephone circuit. The university ticket bureau approved its installation but this agency is under another university department.

McCormick said that when he has completed his investigation he will submit his findings to Kenneth L. Wilson, Northwestern athletic director. He denied reports that he would file a protest with Major John L. Griffith, western conference athletic commissioner.

Other Big Ten coaches besides Hanley said they saw nothing "unethical" in the practice with Coach Kipke of Michigan, undefeated this year, explaining that he had considered adopting it but that his team "has been getting along pretty well without it."

White Sox Insure Outfielder Simmons For More $100,000

Chicago—(P)—An idea of what the Chicago White Sox gave Connie Mack for Al Simmons, may be gained from the fact that the new Sox outfielder has been insured for $100,000.

Simmons took his examination yesterday and stacked up close to 100 per cent.

Ripon, Carroll Play Saturday Game Will Decide Football Championship of Little Four League

Waukesha—Ripon college joined Carroll as a leader of the Big Four conference, following a 12 to 7 victory the Redmen scored Saturday over the Lawrence Vikings. The Pioneers have two victories and no defeats to their credit, while Ripon has one victory and one tie.

The league championship will be decided here Saturday in the crowning grid battle of the season when Ripon and Carroll clash on Frame field in a homecoming game.

Pioneers Get Rest

Had Lawrence and not Ripon won Saturday's game at Appleton, the worst Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite could have done was tie with Lawrence for the title.

Thistlethwaite gave his Pioneers a rest Monday in preparation for hard training sessions Tuesday and Wednesday nights. A chalk talk Monday night acquainted the squad with new formations that will be used against the Redmen.

Carroll, in going to a 18 to 7 victory over Lake Forest Saturday, showed great improvement in scoring. Although the first score, a safety, was the result of a high wind, the touchdown that followed and the one registered in the last quarter were the results of good football.

Badger Reserves Drilled Monday Regulars Given Rest by Doc Spears; Prep for Homecoming Game

Madison—(P)—The Wisconsin reserves were given all the work yesterday while the regulars took a rest as the Badgers began preparations for Illinois.

All the men who saw action against Ohio State last weekend emerged without injury and will be in form to meet the Illini in the homecoming game.

If Coach Spears intends to make any change in the lineup he did not reveal it yesterday because only the reserves were getting his attention. If it probable Dave Tobias, through his work against the Buckeyes, will see more action at tackle.

Coaches Irwin Uteritz and Fred Swan drilled the freshmen in plays used by Illinois when it defeated Virginia University, faces another sturdy gridiron foe this weekend. The Hilltoppers meet Detroit university at Detroit.

Coach Frank Murray indicated during yesterday's workout that the Marquette squad faces a week of stiff drills. Art Agostini was calling signals in the quarterback position in place of Eugene Ronzani.

Avalanche Gets Hard Drill for Detroit

Milwaukee—(P)—Marquette university's Golden Avalanche, which last Saturday suffered a crushing 37 to 7 defeat at the hands of West Virginia University, faces another sturdy gridiron foe this weekend. The Hilltoppers meet Detroit university at Detroit.

Coach Frank Murray indicated during yesterday's workout that the Marquette squad faces a week of stiff drills. Art Agostini was calling signals in the quarterback position in place of Eugene Ronzani.

Badgers Still Rate Second in Offensive Play

Wolves are Best Defensive Team; 13 Points Against Them

MADISON—(P)—Although tied by Ohio State last Saturday, Wisconsin still is the second best offensive and defensive eleven in the Western conference.

Almost from the start of the current season Michigan has been on top of the heap for the defensive and offensive honors but the Badgers have been making a steady climb to the summit. Now the difference between the elevens offensively is only eight points while Michigan has a three point margin on defense.

Michigan used the Princeton game to add 14 points to its total score and leads all Big Ten elevens with 101 points. The Badgers are next with 93 and Chicago is in third place with 88 points. Purdue's victory over N. Y. U. enabled it to climb to fourth place with 84 points, sending Northwestern to fifth place with 68.

Indiana scored 33 points against Mississippi state to climb from tenth to sixth place in the race for offensive honors with a total of 52. Illinois was next with 49, one point ahead of Ohio State. Minnesota with 47 points and Iowa with 43 points brought up the rear.

Michigan has 13 points against its defensive record, seven of them being scored by Princeton. Wisconsin is second place with 16 points, two scored by Marquette and seven by Purdue and Ohio State. Minnesota ranks as the third best defensive team in the loop with 19 points and Indiana is fourth with 26. The other teams trail in the following order: Chicago 27; Northwestern 29; Purdue and Ohio State 35; Illinois 72, and Iowa 85.

Joe Linfor, Wisconsin halfback, continued to lead his mates as the best ground gainer on the squad. He covered 14 yards from scrimmage against Ohio State to boost his total this season to 245. Bobby Schiller is next with 132 and Walter McGuire, halfback, is in third place with 113. Other leading ground gainers are Tom Fontaine, halfback, 110, Hal Smith, fullback, 109, Jim Bingham, halfback, 86, and Clair Strain, fullback, 81.

In addition to being the Badgers' best ground gainer, Linfor is the leading point maker for the Cardinal squad. He kicked the extra point which tied Ohio State 7-7 to boost his total for the season to 13 points. Individual scorers are:

McGuire, halfback	2	0	12

No changes were recorded among the two leaders in the Knights of Columbus bowling league on 21st alleys last night, although three teams moved into a tie for third place honors. The DeSoto team leads the loop, San Pedro is second and Allouez, Santa Marias, Crusaders and San Salvadors are tied for third.

Last night De Soto took the second and third from the Magallans, the second with 206 by Schommer, and 208 by W. Keller, the third because of some poor kegging by the Magallans.

San Pedro took two from the Marquettes, M. Bauer and J. Hamn each had 202 in the first win, the Marquette handicap gave the team its second game and a 68 beat the Marquettes in the third game.

Allouez turned in several high scores but won only one game from the Balboas. The 218 to 0 handicap was too much. In the only Allouez

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

ABOUT THOSE BADGERS

THE Ohio-Wisconsin game at Columbus last Saturday was witnessed by our name sake on Milwaukee's Sentinel and yesterday he penned a lot of comments about the Badgers that didn't get into his regular Sunday story. So we've picked up a few of them and here they are:

"Ohio State, with a big and powerful team that tied Pittsburgh the previous Saturday, was expected to trample over the Badgers and win by one or two touchdowns. The Buckeyes did do a little tramping but only when the Badgers permitted them to and they were fortunate, indeed, to escape with a 7 to 7 tie."

"Was Dr. Spears pleased with the showing of the team? You can write it down that he was more than that. He was actually delighted over the performance of the club and didn't hesitate to say so on the way home."

"The boys gave everything they had in that game," he declared, "and when any football team does that there can be no complaint from a coach. They outgamed Ohio all the way and played smart football. They let the Buckeyes run when it didn't mean anything and when they got dangerous the boys tightened up and took the ball away from them."

"They blocked and tackled well. Our line, outworned as it was, played a whale of a defensive game. Those giant Ohios, however, were a little too hard to handle on the offense and our running game didn't function as well as one might expect. What a squad of football players Ohio had!"

In addition to the performance of the entire team, there was much to cheer about in the individual efforts of the players.

Kabat, inclined to rest on his laurels this year, snapped out of his lethargy at Columbus and turned in a fine game at guard. He again was the up-starting, devastating linemen he was two years ago. He inspired the others on the line to play way over their heads against the Buckeyes.

"One of the surprises of the day was the work of Dave Tobias as tackle in the second half. Tobias went in and worked like a veteran. Ohio's big linemen didn't push him around the field and in the pinch Dave broke through to block Vuchinich's place kick which might have pulled the game out of the fire for the Buckeyes."

"He seems to be Dr. Spears' answer for a successor to Goldenberg. He weighs over 200 pounds and is especially shifty for a big fellow."

"Marvin Peterson, the red-head from Manitowoc, was a revelation. Kept out of the lineup most of the season because of injuries, he got into the Ohio game just in time to save it for the Badgers."

"That 65-year return of a punt for a touchdown was a beautiful thing to see. He got away fast to shake two tacklers who were right upon him, sidestepped two more and then twisted his way down the lane Wisconsin blockers had prepared for him to cross the goal line unmolested."

"As pretty as his touchdown run was, it wasn't any more pleasing to watch that his other ball-carrying efforts. He ran with such vigor and so much drive that the Buckeye tacklers had a tough time knocking him down and they weren't any too gentle in trying to accomplish the feat."

"Peterson is an excellent kicker and a fair passer. He'll be a better passer before long and when you see the finished product, you'll agree that he is just about as sweet a back as any Wisconsin team ever has had. He's got all the natural ability and, boys, he likes it."

Bill Petrolle Gets Down to 138 Pounds

New York—(P)—Billy Petrolle, Duluth puncher who meets Tony Canzoneri in a 15-round bout in Madison Square Garden Friday night for the lightweight championship, has cut his weight to 138 pounds.

Scaling 142 pounds when he started training, Petrolle had worked steadily and now is within striking distance of the class limit of 135 pounds.

Canzoneri, meantime, has no worries. He fights habitually at around 132 or 133 pounds.

Wildcats, Ohio Make Last Stand In the Big Ten

Contenders Early in Season Now Hope to Save Something From Ruins

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO—(P)—A couple of teams that figured to be right up among the leaders in the Big Ten football title battle—Ohio State and Northwestern—will meet Saturday to try to salvage something from so far dismal seasons.

With plenty of veteran material, Ohio was expected to go places, but after defeating Ohio Wesleyan, lost to Michigan and played ties with Indiana, Wisconsin and Pittsburgh. Northwestern did not appear quite as powerful as in 1930 and 1931, but seemed good enough to finish high in the first division. To date, the Wildcats had lost to Michigan and Minnesota, tied Purdue, and defeated Illinois.

Northwestern probably will rely almost solely on forward passes against the "Buckeyes." Coach Dick Hanley figures Ohio's line to be about as good as those at Minnesota and Purdue, and his running attack having been stopped dead by the latter pair, sees passes as the only way to winning Saturday. The Buckeyes will try to get their own running game going, hoping to gain on the ground as Minnesota and Purdue did against the Wildcats.

Fay Again Available

Michigan will have Stanley Fay available for duty for the first time in two weeks, against Indiana, although he probably will not start. The Wolverines will work on their passing maneuvers, which clicked only once in nine times against Princeton, and the Hoosiers will spend a good share of the week on defensive measures.

Purdue got right down to business yesterday in its preparations for the Chicago tussle. The Boiler-makers will be long favorites, but have been well warned of Chicago's habit of springing upsets at Purdue's expense.

While not taking the Mississippi game too lightly, Minnesota will keep one eye on the Wisconsin game a week from Saturday, while the Badgers are polishing up a running attack built around Mickey McGuire, the Irish-Hawaiian halfback, for use against Illinois. Illinois plans to stick to the forward passing that proved so valuable against Chicago.

Coach Ossie Schlem may try Francis Scammon, 220 pound tackle at fullback against Nebraska, in place of Bernard Page, who has managed to hang onto the job in spite of his meager 158 pounds, to get more drive into the Hawkeye ball carrying.

Clintonville Is Beaten by Shawano

Cardinals Close 1932 Season With 6 and 0 Defeat Sunday

Clintonville—The second game of the season between Clintonville and Shawano, was played last Sunday at the Shawano fair grounds. The Clintonville team, minus three of its star players, did not show as well as it has in the week before and lost 6-0. Although the Clintonville line held the Shawano backs to no gain, the Clintonville backfield, in turn, was unable to gain anything through the Shawano line and the game was a punter's duel almost entirely.

Al Reid made the one touchdown scored by Shawano after a Clintonville backfield man had fumbled the ball, which was recovered by Shawano, and which placed them within scoring distance. The game did not have any of the old-time pep usually demonstrated in Shawano-Clintonville games which undoubtedly was due to the small crowd and the lack of interest the players took in the game.

The game Sunday closed the season for the Clintonville Cardinals, giving them a record of two victories, two defeats, and two ties.

Bays Best Defensive Team in Pro League

New York—(P)—The champion Green Bay Packers are the best defensive outfit in the National Professional Football League.

The packers have permitted the opposition to gain only 899 yards in seven games, an average of slightly more than 128 yards per game. Second place in this division of play belongs to the Chicago Cardinals who have allowed 748 yards in five games, an average of 149. The weakest team in this respect has been Brooklyn with an average of 230 yards per game.

Stapleton has gained the most yardage—1406 in seven games. Green Bay has scored the most points, 84, and the New York Giants have the best passing record with 42 completions in 98 attempts.

Philadelphia—Jimmy Smith, Philadelphia, outpunched Cowboy Jack Willis, Oklahoma (10); Jack Portney, Baltimore, stopped Billy Shaw, Detroit (3); Umberto Arce, Puerto Rico, stopped Billy Roderer, Louisville (3).

Manchester, England—Jackie Brown, England, stopped Young Perez, France (13).

County Asks Federal Aid For Road Job

Wants State to Allot $100,000 for Improvement of Highway 54

A request for $100,000 of federal aid emergency funds to complete paving Highway 54 between Shiocton and New London and Seymour and Oneda, was forwarded yesterday by the Outagamie-co highway committee to the state highway commission at Madison. Members of the state highway commission are expected to come to Outagamie-co next week to inspect the road where the improvement is proposed.

The suggestion that an application for federal aid funds, provided for the relief of unemployment, be made has been discussed for some time by the county highway officials. Recently a verbal request was made to the commission by Frank Appleton, highway commissioner, but yesterday the committee prepared an official, written request.

Considerable discussion of the matter took place before the application was made. D. F. Culbertson, engineer in charge of the state highway department's division office at Green Bay, attended the meeting yesterday. The county highway committee pointed out that it again desired this year to raise a portion of its allotment of the gas tax funds to pay off outstanding highway bonds and the balance would be used to improve Highway 55 between Freedom and Seymour.

The committee suggested that the state department also allot about $100,000 to the county from the state's share of the federal aid funds. This sum would be sufficient, it was pointed out, to complete the improvement of Highway 54 through the county. This year approximately 16 miles of the road was paved with a black top surface, at a cost of about $85,000, with funds taken from the county's share of the gas tax.

The improvement proposed with the federal funds consists of 16 miles of road. Seven miles between Shiocton and New London would be paved and shoulders would be built on the nine miles of road between Seymour and Oneda. After its negotiations with the state are complete, the highway committee's action must be approved by the county board, which holds its annual meeting this month.

Should the county's request for a portion of the federal aid funds be granted, the committee then expressed itself as favoring the use of the gas tax funds this year to complete the improvement of Highway 54.

Flashes of Life

(By the Associated Press)
Magallanes, Chile—A new Robinson Crusoe, who shuns rescue, has been found on an island off the Chilean coast.

Sailors of the French vessel, Tolosa, who landed on Rincin island seeking water, said they followed footprints and surprised a man covered with goat-skins in a semi-savage manner.

Federico Lavariere, one of the sailors, tried to talk to the king of the bleak isle, but he answered only in guttural sounds, as though he had forgotten his language. By signs, the sailors induced him to lead them to a hidden source of water.

On leaving, they invited him to go alone, but he took one look at the ship and fled to the bush.

It was on Juan Fernandez island off the central part of Chile that Alexander Selkirk, the prototype of "Robinson Crusoe," lived.

Soap and Sock
Chicago—Said eight year old Lindy Johnson to Judge Jay A. Schiller.

"Didn't you ever soap a window when you were a kid?"
Said the court: "Yes, I did."

"Well," continued Lindy, "what do you think of a man who socks a kid in the jaw just for soaping a window? There're lots of windows that'd never get washed if it wasn't for kids like me."

Judge Schiller answered by fining Henry Olson $10 for "socking" Lindy.

Charming Little Fibber
San Francisco—Policemen at the station house where a 5-year-old girl Allen was brought as a lost child did not have to answer her by telling tales. She did the telling. It was a thrilling tale about a boat trip from "a long way off," a vanishing mother and hunger and cold in the big city. It ended as the child's mother, Mrs. Pearl Allen, arrived from the family home across the street and claimed her daughter.

The OF A-cord-ten
Chicago—Erwin Dummel's chances for a job, like his accordion, appear to have folded up. The alleged culprit who stole it was caught, police say, but that didn't do Erwin any good because the officers decided to keep the instrument as evidence.

"It's the funniest thing," said Erwin. "I carry that thing around day after day and nobody wants to hire me. Then the police tie it up and right away two jobs are offered me."

ROYAL PAIR RUMORED ENGAGED

PRINCESS INGRID

PRINCE GEORGE

Stockholm (AP)—Stockholm newspapers openly discussed rumors today that the engagement of Princess Ingrid to Prince George or the Prince of Wales will be announced in London Nov. 11.

The newspapers added that the announcement might be made at a dinner in the British capital celebrating the 50th anniversary of the birthday of the princess's father. The time and circumstance of the dinner was accepted as unusually propitious for the announcement, it is to be made, as there is the possibility also that the recently wed Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden and Princess Sibylle may attend the affair.

Like all rumors of royal marriage, this new one for the 22-year-old blonde lady of Sweden meets with discouragement and denial.

The presence of the princess in London for a visit with her royal relatives there, as well as the recent visit to Sweden of the two British princes, lent zest to the reports, however, and "photographs" showing Prince George and Princess Ingrid were the order of the day.

The fact that Prince George was always found at Princess Ingrid's side in Sweden recently made his name more prominent than his elder brother's, the heir to the throne. George's youth and smiling demeanor made him a great favorite, although Wales still held an important place in the press conjecture on the royal marriage.

Versatility and Charm Displayed By Harp Ensemble

Salzedo Opens Community Artist Series at Lawrence Chapel

By Nellie Chamberlain
Crashing chords, swirling cadences, and whispering treble notes were worked into a pattern of extraordinary charm and versatility by the members of the Salzedo harp ensemble in the first number of the Community Artist Series Monday night at Lawrence Memorial chapel before a crowd which half-filled the auditorium. Hands poised in air, eyes on their leader, the six artists followed every nod and glance of Carlos Salzedo, their founder-director, as he took them through the intricacies of each and Debussy as well as a number of his own compositions. Their hands and arms moved in perfect accord in the ensemble numbers, making a striking picture of concerted motion and displaying admirable coordination.

The vari-colored gowns of the ladies formed a veritable rainbow which contrasted agreeably with the conventional black and white of their leader.

Salzedo went through his repertoire and responded to encores with a faintly whimsical smile around his mouth as though he enjoyed playing as much as his audience enjoyed hearing him. His manner was reserved but he showed himself perfectly at ease before his audience, calm and deliberate in his pause before each number, putting his listeners in a hush of expectancy.

Five Group Program
The program which was divided into five groups opened with the Sixth French Suite by Bach. The first section was admirably adapted to displaying the artistry of the premiere harpist, Lucille Lawrence, while the rest of the ensemble provided a background of soft muted notes. The premiere harpist displayed admirable technique, her agility and nimbleness of fingering being noteworthy. The second part showed a similar tempo, slightly accelerated, and the third resorted to a more stately and majestic rhythm. The section was an arrangement for two harps only, its dance tempo harking back to the days of bearded ladies and bewigged men. The Menuet was measured and modulated in typical dance tempo, and the group ended on a sprightly note with Bourree, rapid in tempo and rushing up and down the scale in bewitching flourish.

In the next group, Salzedo alone gave an interpretation of "Theme and Variations" by Haydn, mastering the intricate fingering with apparent ease and giving a finished performance with confidence and self-assuredness. He went from Haydn to his own compositions which included "Chanson dans la nuit," a descriptive number full of runs and cadences like a summer breeze mingled with the twitterings of night birds and, far off, a faint bell.

Changing the mood, he presented a bit of "refined jazz" in "La Desirade" in which the chords had a curious piano-like quality, and he concluded the group with "Whirlwind" which was everything its title suggests. Starting as a gentle breeze, the piece worked into a crescendo of crashing notes and gradually tapered off, ending on a gentle note. Two encores were given after this group.

Dash and Verve
The more or less familiar number by Rameau, "La Joyeuse," opened the next group by the entire ensemble, who gave to it a dash and verve which appealed to the audience. The piece worked into a measured tempo suggested by the name, and this was followed by an original composition by Salzedo, "Fraicheur," which could have been interpreted by no other instrument but the harp. The familiar melody of "Spanish Dance" by Granados closed the group, blending fire and dash with the romantic twang of a guitar in the romance of Old Spain.

The ensemble responded to two encores, both striking a responsive chord in the audience. They were "The Volga Boatman" and "Believe Me If All These Endearing Young Charms."

Salzedo, the composer, again came to the foreground in the next group which was given by the leader and the premiere harpist, Miss Lawrence. The group, entitled "Pentacle," was composed in 1928 at the request of Mrs. Elizabeth S. Coolidge for the tenth anniversary of the Pittsfield Festival, and gives a complete demonstration of the orchestra range of the harp. "Felines" with its strange minor notes and combination of sounds like the meowing of a cat, was especially well-received by the audience. "Steel" and "Cascades" made use of various sounds and effects which give them unusual force, and the weird theme of "Serenade" which is built on the musical synthesis of an individual laugh was out of the ordinary. "Pantomime" showing contrasting moods in sudden change of tempo, and rhythm employed "trick" effects such as tapping on the wood of the instrument and using a strip of paper between the strings to produce buzzing and snapping sounds.

Chimes Are Heard
The ensemble closed its program with a group by Debussy which reached its climax in "La Cathedrale Engloutie," a tone picture of majestic and sonorous notes. In it could be heard the chimes of the sunken cathedral through the waves which engulfed it, and now and then a clear and distinct note as the waters receded for a moment. Others in this group were "Danseuses," "de Delphes" and "La Danse de Puck."

The audience seemed to enjoy Salzedo, the harpist, more than Salzedo, the composer. His own compositions were, for the most part, highly interpretive and technical, and did not seem to elicit the response that the familiar compositions did. However, his descriptive numbers were amusing and gave opportunity for the harpist to display imagination and marvelous technique.

The personnel of the ensemble included Carlos Salzedo, director; Lucille Lawrence, premiere harpist; Marietta Eitter, second harpist; Grace Weymer, and Eleanor Guthrie, first harp; and Thurema Sokol and Victoria Murdock, second harps.

Forget Worries, Enjoy Living, Says Cavanaugh

Love of Knowledge, Friends are Good Things In Life, Lions Told

Craftsmanship, love of knowledge, and appreciation of art, friendships, and religion are the good things in life, J. F. Cavanaugh, city superintendent of schools at Kaukauna, told Appleton Lions club at the weekly luncheon meeting Monday noon at Conway hotel.

There were many examples of great men he might cite, Mr. Cavanaugh said in answer to his own remark that his ideas might be considered idealistic, but he paid tribute to General Robert E. Lee of the Confederate States as his outstanding example.

Lee, he said, was a soldier, and his craftsmanship in his chosen occupation, war, was almost perfect. His knowledge of literature and general subjects was well recognized and his many friendships are best proved by the honors paid him by north and south. His religion never was questioned.

After commenting on the present political strife, the depression, and its various events, during which he discussed panics of other years and resulting strife which often necessitated troops, Mr. Cavanaugh paid tribute to education stating that the reason for general good morale in the country was education and passing illiteracy.

Believes In Happiness
Happiness, and a joy in living is an anecdote to the blues and a destroyer of depression, he said. Craftsmanship, the ability to serve well as a merchant, manufacturer, doctor, lawyer, or teacher also helps to overcome difficulty. Each person has some natural vocation and it is vocation, make a good and efficient workman and if he has aptitude and ability, with them will come love for work and happiness.

Love of knowledge for its own sake, together with an intense desire to go higher in life, is another of the good things in life, he pointed out. A college education alone does not serve the purpose, for a college education is only an outline that must be filled in later by reading, the speaker said.

"Books in the homes of your friends are indices of their mental capacity and growth," Mr. Cavanaugh said.

He also commented on appreciation and love of art in the many

Lutheran Organization Conducts District Rally At Clintonville

(Special to Post-Crescent) Clintonville—Over 200 members of the Walther league in zones six and seven of the Northern Wisconsin district attended the fall rally held Sunday at St. Martin Lutheran church in this city.

New officers were elected at the business session during the afternoon. Milton Eggert of Shawano was elected president to succeed Eric Albers of Shawano. Miss Pearl Schroeder of this city was chosen secretary and treasurer to succeed Miss Mabel Hebbe of New London. William Birk of Wausau, president of the Northern Wisconsin district, spoke to the gathering. E. F. Eusecher of Bonduel talked on the Problems of the Walther league and their solution.

A banquet was served to about 200 at 5:30 in the church dining room, at which William Birk of Wausau acted as toastmaster. A number of short talks were given in response. Orchestra music was presented and violin duets were played by Miss Erna Bernhagen and Milton Nelson, with piano accompaniment by Miss Dorothea Carter.

A program was given during the evening in St. Martin school auditorium. Two one act plays were given by local members of the Junior and Senior Walther Leagues. Contests and assembly singing completed the entertainment.

The spring rally for the zones will be held at Shawano.

The twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tanner was celebrated Sunday, when relatives and friends surprised them at their home, 222 Power-st., in honor of the event. A social afternoon and evening were spent and a 6:30 dinner was served to about 25 guests. The party was arranged by their children who were all present for the occasion. They are: Wheaton of Appleton, Lowell of Milwaukee, Louise, Norman and Russell of this city. Others present included Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hangartner and family of Marion, Jack Behlke of Milwaukee, John Kafka, Mrs. Henry Lang, Mrs. Clara Lang, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lang, Mr. and Mrs. William Nath, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kramer and son Dean, all of this city.

The marriage of Fred Tanner to Miss Alice Lang, both of this place, occurred Oct. 31, 1907 in the Salem Evangelical church of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. Zimmerman, former local pastor. Following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Tanner resided on a farm about six miles west of Clintonville for about ten years. Since that time they have been residents of this city except for a period of four years which they spent in Milwaukee.

A large crowd filled the city hall Saturday evening when Peter Walraven, city manager of Stevens Point, spoke on the question of poor relief. He was brought here by the recently organized Clintonville Taxpayers' committee.

Methodist Ladies Guild will hold its annual Rally Day Thursday afternoon at the church parlors. Guests have been invited to attend and a covered dish luncheon will be served.

Clintonville Woman's club will sponsor a homecraft display Friday, Nov. 8 from 2 to 9 o'clock in their club rooms at the public library. The public is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served and admission is 10 cents.

Committee Stresses Need for Clothing

(Special to Post-Crescent) New London—The need for discarded clothing, particularly shoes, rubbers, overshoes and underwear, again is stressed by the city poor committee, whose chairman is William Lipke. Due to the efforts of the Red Cross committee some clothing is coming in and through the organization of district workers more will continue to be received. Mr. Lipke states that shoes which have whole uppers will be welcomed as the department will be glad to resole those which need this attention. No clothing which is whole and clean should be discarded. Points out Mr. Lipke, as the need already is great and the winter months will create an unusual need for warm clothing. Heads of this department will be glad to call for garments at any address in the city, it was pointed out.

How best to obtain the greatest and most lasting satisfaction, and how best to derive the fullest measure of success from life were brought out in the speaker's address.

The remainder of the luncheon period was given over to discussion of the event being planned by Rotarians for Monday, Nov. 7, when all farmers of the community will be guests of the club at the annual farmers gathering at the high school auditorium.

Contrary to usual plans, however, the number of guests will not be restricted, approximately 400 guests are expected. A program is being planned by a committee headed by George Werner. Where Does She Get Her "Pep?"

SHE doesn't look seventy. Nor does that old. The woman who stimulates her organs can have energy that women half her age will envy!

At middle-age your vital organs begin to slow down. You may not be sick, simply sluggish. But why endure a condition of half-health when there's a stimulant that will stir a stagnant system to new life and energy in a week's time?

This remarkable stimulant is perfectly harmless. It is, in fact, a family doctor's prescription. So, if you're tired of trying every patent medicine that comes along, tell the druggist you want a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a bit of this delicious syrup every day or so, until you know by the way you feel that your lazy liver is again active, and your bowels are poison-free.

Men, women, and children who are run-down, who tire easily, get bilious spells or have frequent headaches, are soon straightened out when they get this prescriptional preparation of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh laxative herbs. (Syrup pepsin is all the help the bowels need, and you do not form the very bad habit of always taking cathartics.)

Keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin in the house, and take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. It is all that a great many people ever take to keep strong and vigorous, and absolutely free from constipation.

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
New York—(P)—The stock market slid quietly lower in the early trading today, then drifted along with little change during the remainder of the session. The closing tone was heavy, with numerous losses of 1 to 3 points. Trading was in slighter larger volume than the previous session, but the market was only about half a million shares.

Another sag in wheat evidently prompted some selling in shares, although the list reflected absence of nearby demand rather than important liquidation. On the whole, the list closed fractionally above the day's lows, but such occasional rallies as appeared were extremely feeble. Floor traders evidently provided the bulk of activity, but even they were mostly content to let the market drift.

Union Pacific lost more than 3 points, getting down nearly 4 at one time. American Telephone and Allied Chemical lost nearly 3, and issues losing 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 included U. S. Steel, Socony-Vacuum, American Can, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Corn Products, Case, Consolidated Gas, and others. Ralls were conspicuously heavy. As a group, were not much affected by Socony-Vacuum's dividend cut. Standard of N. J. sagged nearly a point, then recovered partially. General Motors and General Electric held all but steady.

Preliminary estimates of last week's crude oil production indicated a substantial drop in the flow, as a result of curtailment in Texas and California. Ordering of the regular 25 cent dividend and the regular 25 cent like amount, by Standard of N. J., was a reassuring development, but had been anticipated. It was partly offset by Socony-Vacuum's ordering of a payment of only 10 cents, against 20 cents three months ago. Earnings statements of the oil companies, however, continue to show small profits, in contrast to large deficits a year ago. Continental Oil Co. of Delaware reported net equal to 7 cents a share for the September quarter, in contrast to a deficit of $2,955,322 in the like period of 1931.

Most brokerage quarters thought the poor third quarter earnings reports had been largely discounted. Oils appeared to be the only major group showing marked improvement, although the complete third quarter reports of the railroads promise to show fair gains in spots. Even that group is showing some substantial recessions in net. Consolidated Gas of New York reported third quarter net of only 87 cents a share, against 49 cents in the like period of 1931.

Selling of the rails appeared to be based on the belief that the seasonal upturn in the movement of freight had reached its peak in the week ended Oct. 15. The last two weeks of the year normally see considerable tapering off. Santa Fe, first of the larger trunklines to report for the week ended Oct. 27, showed a decline of 2,270 cars from the period ended Oct. 22.

Dividends

New York—(P)—Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey today declared the usual annual dividend of 25 cents a share on the capital stock, in addition to the regular quarterly payment of the same amount. Both are payable Dec. 15 to stock of record Nov. 15.

Directors of the Socony-Vacuum Corp. today declared a quarterly dividend of 10 cents a share on the common stock against 20 cents a share in the previous quarter.

The Socony-Vacuum Corp., which was formed in July, 1931, as a consolidation of the former Standard Oil Co. of New York and the Vacuum Oil corporation, paid an initial dividend of 40 cents a share on Sept. 15, 1931. In the following December, the payment was cut to 25 cents and in June, 1932, to 20 cents a share. An interim dividend of 20 cents was paid last Sept. 15.

The directors did not give any statement on current earnings, indicating that none would be given before the issuance of the regular report. In 1931, the company reported a net loss of $4,168,000. After dividends, the company had a deficit of $4,741,000. The company's current dividend is payable Dec. 15 to stock of record Nov. 18.

Hog Market Still Lacks Momentum

New Low Average Cost For Year Indicated at Opening of Trade

Chicago—(P)—A steady to weak start in a market that lacked self-propelling energy today threatened a new low average cost of hogs for the year. Offerings of 21,000 included 4,000 forward to packers and 4,000 state hogs supplemented the open market supply. Outside demand was at low ebb and further weakness in the fresh pork market kept packers from taking hold carlot.

Strictly choice hogs and lights had first call and quotations ranging from 17 to 240 lbs. crossed the scales at $3.30 and $3.35 within the first hour. Heavy packing sows at $2.35-2.75 were sellers, but the big operators showed interest in the 330 to 450 lb. weights at the current low prices which are lowest since 1896.

2 Cattle offerings of 8,000 were all on sale in the open market and together with the liberal carry over of state cattle from yesterday's sluggish market clogged the trade. Further concessions were demanded by traders, some of whom were filled up yesterday, but others waited until today to put on extreme pressure. Western ranchers made up about 300 head of the run. Weaker prices were quoted.

Only a moderate supply of live muttons was landed in the sheep sheds and packers had hardly any direct, a single car being switched to one of the packers' sidetracks. Sellers were emboldened to ask higher prices, but actual trading did not get under way early.

Move in Britain Helps Pull Down Values of Grain

Commons Deny Preference to Canadian Wheat From U. S. Ports

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
(Associated Press Market Editor)
Chicago—(P)—Action of the British House of Commons in denying preference to Canadian wheat consigned from American ports put a new weight on grain values here today.

The vote implied further export restrictions on wheat shipments from North America, even though such shipments were on Canadian grown wheat sent through the United States unless consigned direct from Canada.

Wheat quotations here flattered late today near a fresh world's low record established this morning, the fourth record smash in less than a week. New downturns toward the last took place despite some buying in Chicago against equal simultaneous sales at Winnipeg.

The commons vote, 247 to 55, was on a motion that grain consigned from a United States port and certified to have been grown in Canada should be entitled to British empire tariff preference.

Wheat offerings yesterday 8-13 under yesterday's finish. Dec 43-44, May 43-44; corn 1-1 down, Dec 24-41, May 26-29; oats unchanged to 1 lower, and provisions showing 2 cents advance.

Contributing momentum to the downward trend of wheat values was weakness of securities. Another bearish factor was increased estimates of the nation's corn crop and of the amount of old corn held on farms. November unofficial estimates of the 1932 domestic corn production averaged 2,916,000,000 bushels against an October unofficial average of 2,912,000,000 and government October estimate of 2,885,000,000. A total of old corn at present on farms was unofficially put at 141,000,000 bushels, compared with 78,951,000 a year ago.

Grain Notes

Chicago—Slow movement of wheat into consumptive channels and lack of any motive, other than price, for buying was the diagnosis of the cause of the almost stagnant La Salle wheat market by observers today. Traders said that the decline that sent prices down any level in the memory of living grain operators was the result of an apathetic attitude rather than of aggressive selling. Some statisticians said prices of wheat were lower than at any time since the days of Queen Elizabeth while others asserted they were lower in the fifties.

The South Dakota Bankers association has joined in the fight of farmers and elevator men obtain a reduction of freight rates on grain. Railroad executives will meet this month to discuss possibilities of cutting the hauling charges.

Export sales of Canadian wheat increased on the bread market. Seaboard reported that several cargoes had been moved and private wires said a leading foreign house took 1,250,000 bushels stored in Montreal. Liverpool was weak, however, and later in one day cables from South America said that Argentine wheat had dropped to about 40 cents a bushel.

A corn crop of 2,880,927,000 bushels was estimated by J. E. Bennett and E. H. Miller. The estimates for the eleven leading corn states were: Ohio, 118,980,000; Indiana, 169,260,000; Illinois, 388,720,000; Minnesota, 169,450,000; Iowa, 501,902,000; Missouri, 190,220,000; South Dakota, 33,990,000; Nebraska, 170,320,000; Kansas, 133,650,000; Texas, 12,350,000; and Oklahoma, 70,120,000.

CHICAGO STOCKS

Chicago—(P)—Prices went lower on the Chicago Stock Exchange today. Commonwealth Edison dropped a full point, and Sears-Roebuck nearly as much. Bendix, Walgreen, Marshall Field and Borg Warner suffered smaller setbacks.

Kaukauna Grid Team Prepares For Appleton

Final Game of Season on Nov. 11 to be Played For Charity

Kaukauna—With the close of the Northeastern Wisconsin conference football season for the Kaukauna high school team, practice sessions for the final tilt of the season to be played with Appleton here on Armistice Day will be started Wednesday afternoon. The proceeds of the game will be divided evenly for charity work in both cities.

Mayor E. W. Fargo has issued a request to business men and storekeepers to declare a holiday between 12:30 and 4 o'clock on Nov. 11 to allow employees to attend the game. The kickoff is scheduled for 2 p. m. Extra bleachers will be brought to the local park from Lawrence college at Appleton. The Royal Clothing store has donated the ball which will be used in the game.

Kaukauna high's team has gone through its conference schedule without defeat and administered a decisive 18 to 2 trimming to Neenah high school's title contenders last week. The local eleven has displayed more strength in its games this year than most other teams here in recent years. It has scored a total of 178 points against 27 for its opponents. Coach Paul E. Little will work the squad in light offensive and defensive drills this week, opening with more strenuous sessions next Monday. The team came through the Neenah fracas practically unscathed. Vils, who had sustained lacerations in an automobile accident Oct. 20, played the entire game at Neenah.

As the Kaukauna high school has celebrated no homecoming this year it is expected that the school alumni will return for the game with Appleton. A celebration is being arranged for Thursday evening, Nov. 10, and students of the school will build a bonfire. The high school band may parade about town during the evening with the entire student body.

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

God's Gold

The fortune of John D. Rockefeller, for all that the man was hated during his active career as well

Americans have been hated, was probably the most honestly acquired of any of our great fortunes.

So says John T. Flynn in "God's Gold," a thoroughly documented and strikingly interesting biography of the great oil king.

Mr. Flynn is not trying either to whitewash or to expose Rockefeller. He studies him, he says, in order to illustrate an epoch in American history. Rockefeller's life is the very epitome of the industrial age's arrival at its fullest and most logical development.

So Mr. Flynn gives us a book that is as much social history as biography. Rockefeller, he says, was cold-blooded and ruthless; but when he froze out a competitor he always offered to take the man into Standard Oil, and every competitor who accepted the offer and held on to his stock grew very wealthy. Rockefeller never put any water in Standard Oil stock. He was always a merchandiser, and never a promoter. Compared with Gould, Fisk, Drew and their kind, or even with Morgan himself, Mr. Flynn finds him deserving of a good deal of praise.

But Mr. Flynn isn't engaged in a white-washing expedition, and he makes no attempt to hide the black flag which the oil king occasionally flew. "God's Gold" is very interesting, very informative, and about as impartial as such a book could be.

It is published by Harcourt, Brace and Co.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

THE JUGGERNAUT OF THE JUNGLE

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the famous animal painter, Paul Branson...inspired by the savage charge of the African rhinoceros crashing through the untamed jungle. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos haven't place in Luckies.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.
